

Telegrams and Letters Read As Evidence in U. S. Oil Trial

One Stresses Need for Continuous Buying Program

COURT IN RECESS

First Direct Testimony On Stabilization Pact

Madison—(4)—Prosecutors in the federal government's gasoline price-fixing case, who have been submitting documentary evidence in small quantities during five weeks of trial, began reading letters and telegrams to the jury again today.

More than 18 tons of documents and records were obtained by the government for this case from the files of 23 oil companies being tried here on charges of conspiring to raise and peg gasoline prices in 1935 and 1936.

Harry Jacobs of St. Louis, Mo., employed in the marketing division of the Shell Petroleum Corporation, identified the documents read to the jury today by Special Prosecutor Hammond Chaffetz.

One was a memorandum from A. P. Reuther, manager of the crude oil department of Shell Corporation, to officials of the company. It told of a meeting of major oil company representatives in the office of Edward J. Bullock, official of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, in Chicago.

Buying Program

The memorandum said that "the committee, with the exception of Karstedt (Edward Karstedt of Denver, then vice president of Continental Oil company), agreed that a continuous purchasing program is necessary. It was agreed that the most effective method would be for individual major purchasers to arrange with individual small refiners to keep their material off the market."

The memorandum did not name the companies represented at the meeting.

The government alleges a program of buying the output of small refiners was a part of the conspiracy.

Chaffetz and Special Prosecutor John Henry Lewin read a series of weekly reports prepared for Shell Oil company. In these reports the state of the market in the reports Jacobs attributed the firmness of the market in 1935 to major company buying.

Court recessed at noon for the weekend, under an agreement among counsel.

Admits Buying Plan

The first direct testimony of an oil company executive that his company purchased gasoline from small refiners in 1935 and 1936 to help stabilize the market was a matter of record.

This testimony was given yesterday by Harold Parsons, East Orange, N. J., of the Tide Water Association, Inc. He said he was assistant to the president of the Tide Water Oil company of New Jersey when it bought gasoline in those years.

"The company purchased the gasoline because it was required to supplement our stocks and because we believed that it was a good thing to endeavor to take gasoline from East Texas and help stabilize the market," Parsons said.

Parsons explained that Tide Water Associated was a holding company until December, 1936—during which month the indictment being tried here was returned by the grand jury—and that in that month it took over the assets of Tide Water Oil company.

Fail to Renew Permit For Detective Agency

Milwaukee—(4)—The fire and police commission last night failed to approve an application of Pinkerton's National Detective Agency, Inc., for renewal of a state license to operate in Milwaukee.

The commission passed favorably on the application of former Police Inspector John Bauschke and former Captain of Detectives Frank Prohaska for a license to open a new private detective agency here.

Under state law approval of a fire and police commission or of the local police chief, if no such commission exists, is a necessary prerequisite to obtaining a license.

Roosevelt Favors Reunion Of Warring Labor Groups But Takes 'Hands-Off' View

Washington—(4)—An informed person said today CIO members of the labor peace conference had suggested to A. F. of L. representatives creation of a "super-committee" of 25 to direct the whole American labor movement.

This specific proposal for ending the bitter fight between the two workers' organizations became known shortly after President Roosevelt had told a press conference he always had favored re-union of the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The peace suggestion was submitted to the conference yesterday. It was offered, the informed person said, as a mechanism both for bringing the two organizations together and for settling jurisdictional disputes. The question of jurisdiction is one of the toughest before the conference.

The proposed committee was described as an executive council, presumably to be composed of representatives of each organization.

The president gave his comment in reply to the final question put at his first press interview since returning to Washington after a 12-day stay at Hyde Park. His statement came a few hours before peace committees of the A. F. of L. and CIO were to resume their sessions.

The president was asked if he favored action to bring the CIO and A. F. of L. together. He replied he always had advocated that.

Asked if the administration had been taking an active part in trying to get the warring labor factions together, he replied not that he knew of.

Asked next if Matthew Woll, A. F. of L. delegate to the peace conference, would call on him soon, the president said he would. He said the engagement had been planned for some time.

The labor conference, meanwhile, struck at the fundamental issue between the A. F. of L. and the CIO today by agreeing to discuss which industries should have broad industrial unions.

Observers interested in ending the two-year dispute between these factions of organized labor called the decision a hopeful sign. Negotiations will resume tomorrow.

$1,000 Liquor Haul in Waukesha County Raids

Waukesha—(4)—S. A. Woldenberg, chief enforcement officer of the state beverage tax division, said today raids on three places in Waukesha county last night resulted in the confiscation of five auto loads of liquor valued at about $1,000.

Woldenberg said the raids took place at "The Ace", operated by Marion Woods, on the Bluemound road; the home of Ann Sekas, known as "Banana Ann" nearby; and the home of Rudolph Kraemer on Highway 59.

Woldenberg said the raids were followed without search warrants following several weeks of evidence gathering at the places by his agents. He said no arrests were made but that the operators of the raided places were ordered to appear at the office of District Attorney Scott Lowry today.

The district attorney said warrants were to be issued today charging the operators with sale of beer and liquor without a state license.

First Lady to Address Madison Club Saturday

She will address an audience at the University of Wisconsin field house on the topic, "Youth in the World of Tomorrow."

Mrs. Roosevelt will be introduced by President Clarence A. Dykstra of the university.

Labor Protest Fails to Alter Windsor Plans

Edward and Wallis Will Board Liner Tomorrow for U. S. Visit

RETAIN PROGRAM

Duke Refuses to Accept Bedaux Offer to Withdraw as Guide

Paris—(4)—The duke and duchess of Windsor today disregarded an American labor protest against "slumming parties" professing to help and to study labor and proceeded with plans to sail on the liner Bremen tomorrow for a United States tour.

A representative of the duke said no change of arrangements had been made or contemplated.

"There is absolutely no change in our plans," said the duke in a statement tonight.

"We are leaving at noon on Saturday. We are busy arranging final details for departure."

The Wednesday night "condemned" the former British monarch for planning to tour America with Charles E. Bedaux as his guide, terming Bedaux an "arch-enemy of labor." The resolution contained the "slumming party" reference.

Bedaux, an industrial engineer, is inventor of a work system which labor men call the "stretch-out."

Last night in New York Bedaux said he had telephoned the duke, offering to withdraw as guide, but that Windsor had "positively and definitely waved aside" the suggestion.

The abdicated king and Wallis Warfield, formerly of Baltimore, were married at Bedaux's French chateau.

The duke and his American-born wife were invited to a luncheon today at the British embassy in Paris—the second occasion upon which Windsor had been entertained by a British diplomatic official since the December abdication. The former king was entertained at Vienna by the British minister before his wedding.

The Windsors were expected to travel to Cherbourg tomorrow in a special coach or a special compartment to board the Bremen.

Last night the duke and duchess were honor guests at a farewell dinner given by United States Ambassador William Bullitt.

2 are Doomed in Insurance Plot

Third Person Faces 99 Years in Prison for Illinois Murder

Belleville, Ill.—(4)—A circuit court jury convicted three St. Louisans today of murder in connection with the wedding-day slaying of William Kappen, fixing death as the punishment for two of them and 99 years in prison for the third.

Electrocution was ordered by the jury for Mrs. Marie Porter, sister of Kappen, and 22-year-old Angelo Ralph Giancola. He had testified he shot and killed Kappen in a field near here last July 3 in Mrs. Porter's presence and at her insistence in an insurance plot.

John Giancola, Ralph's 20-year-old brother, whom he had attempted to clear of complicity, was given the prison term.

Mrs. Porter, 37-year-old widow and mother of the four children, told the jury in Circuit Judge D. H. Mudge's court that she was not implicated in the plot in any way and had nothing to do with the slaying.

Ralph Giancola asserted, in dramatic testimony that brought the defense case to a close yesterday, that the heavy-set woman had offered him $800 to kill her brother so that she might collect $3,000 in insurance before Kappen's fiancée was made the beneficiary of the policies.

Tavern Regulation Is Hampered in Milwaukee, Ministerial Group Says

Milwaukee—(4)—In a report read by the Rev. F. M. Sheldon, secretary of the committee, Milwaukee's ministerial vice investigators today bluntly repeated to the city council licensing committee their charge that tavern regulation in the city has been hindered.

After making the charge more than a week ago and at the same time giving details of Milwaukee's alleged "vicious and illegal night life," the ministers were requested to amplify their assertions before the licensing committee at the request of its chairman, Alderman John A. Schultz, under threat of subpoena.

In today's report the pastoral investigators charged that between April, 1936, and April, 1937, the licensing committee had been notified by police of law violations in 432 taverns and that only 47 of these

Affirms Order on Cut in Joint Line Rates on Pulpwood

Commission's Action Affects 26 Wisconsin Paper Mills

Madison—(4)—The public service commission today affirmed a previous order making a reduction of approximately 50 per cent joint line freight rates on pulpwood hauled between Wisconsin points.

The commission said the order, affecting 26 Wisconsin paper mills which receive pulpwood over two or more railroads, will be of great financial assistance to the paper industry, fourth largest in the state.

The present charge of $7.50 per car for transfer from one railroad to another was reduced to a rate of $3.75 per car of 70,000 pounds. The railroads asked a rehearing.

The mills proposed a reduction to $1.50, but the commission held this would not cover railroad costs. The Wisconsin industry contended that because of a shortage of nearby pulpwood it could not compete at existing rates with competition from the Pacific coast and the south.

Face Longer Hauls

"Many changes have taken place in the pulpwood movement during the past 25 years," the commission said. "Unquestionably the haul has been lengthened and paper mills are required to go further afield and frequently into territory served by other railroads in order to secure a sufficient amount of pulpwood to meet their needs."

"The percentage of pulpwood moving in joint line traffic has been steadily increasing, due principally to the fact that pulpwood cannot be secured in sufficient quantities from territories served by a single railroad."

"While there was a demand for joint rates on pulpwood as early as 1913, that demand was not nearly so insistent nor so vital to the paper industry as at present, and a higher required rate under such conditions does not of itself demonstrate the impropriety of a lower one at the present time," the commission said.

Spanish Insurgents Claim New Advances

Hendaye, France-Spanish Frontiers—(4)—The Spanish insurgents claimed advances today in two sectors of the Aragon front.

Their daily communiqué reported capture of new positions in upper Aragon near Sabinanigo and Villamayor. A few miles northeast of Zaragoza they were said to have strengthened their line by capturing Mount Maserado.

The insurgents also reported capture of the village of Allue, south of Sabinanigo.

A government communiqué reported fighting along the Zaragoza-Teruel railway in the extreme southern part of Aragon.

Japanese Open New Drive in Soochow Area

Attempt to Force Chinese Southward From New Defense Lines

SEVERE SHELLING

First Objective Apparently Is Hungjiao Airdrome

Shanghai—(4)—Japanese forces opened the thirteenth week of Shanghai warfare today with an offensive designed to drive Chinese south of their new defense lines along Soochow creek.

The Japanese push started along a one-mile front between Rubicon and Weir roads after 10 days of preparation and skirmishes which followed the Chinese retreat from the Chapei section north of the International Settlement. Chinese faced the advancing Japanese from lines nearly a mile south of the creek.

During the night, Japanese were believed to have pushed southward to a line near the junction of Peace and Monument roads. A prolonged artillery bombardment ushered in the drive.

Airdrome Objective

The Japanese objective apparently was the Hungjiao airdrome, three miles southwest of Rubicon village, where warfare about this international city was touched off Aug. 9, with the slaying of a Japanese naval officer and seaman.

Foreign military observers believed Japanese had fired several big guns across Soochow creek. The Japanese batteries were thought to be dropping shells over the entire Hungjiao suburban area, where a number of American and foreign residences are located, in a search for Chinese guns and troop concentrations.

Respect Foreign Property

A Japanese naval spokesman said Japanese had been ordered to respect foreign property in the Hungjiao district unless the property was used by Chinese for military purposes.

Only after a series of costly engagements did the Japanese establish their front south of Soochow creek in a section of Chinese lines which extend west from the International Settlement.

Japanese shock troops crossed the stream on sampans and rafts. Chinese drove them back a number of times with heavy casualties until finally, in the wake of ceaseless covering artillery barrage and aerial bombardment, Japanese effected the consolidation of two sizeable spearheads.

A Chinese unit of 1,000 men which still was splitting the Japanese line was threatened with envelopment by Japanese columns on each side.

Japanese naval authorities announced that a landing force had occupied Yukwan island, outside the port of Wenchow, 250 miles south of Shanghai, in an extension of blockade operations along the east China coast.

Expect Changes in Pay-Hour Measure

House Labor Committee Members Forecast Drastic Revision

Washington—(4)—House labor legislation forecast today the administration's wage-hour bill would be revised substantially before it reaches the house floor.

Representatives Thomas (D-Texas) and Keller (D-Ill.), first members of the labor committee to return for the special session, predicted their group would recall the bill from the rules committee, which kept it bottled up last session.

Both men said they believed the bill, which has passed the senate, could be improved.

Thomas urged elimination of some of the exemptions now in the measure and referred specifically to one applying to employees of local retailers.

He said he wanted the way left open for retailers to come under the bill's regulatory provisions in the event the supreme court should decide that merchants who buy their stocks outside their own states are engaged in interstate commerce.

The bill, designed to improve wage and hour standards of workers engaged in interstate commerce, would permit a federal board to fix minimum wages as high as 40 cents an hour and a work-week as short as 40 hours. It also would ban products of child labor from interstate trade.

Couple Is Accused of Counterfeiting Plot

Shawano, Wis.—(4)—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Evans, proprietors of the Marigold tavern, one and one-half miles south of the Forest-Langlade county line on Highway 55, were freed on $2,500 bond apiece this morning at a hearing before United States Commissioner C. B. Dilleat. Mr. and Mrs. Evans are charged with conspiracy to make, pass and sell silver currency in $5 denomination from Aug. 1, 1936, to July 13, 1937.

The couple will be tried the first Tuesday in December in the federal court at Madison.

The complaint was sworn out Oct. 18, 1937. Bond was furnished by Jeff Kaiser, Graden, and Arthur McMillan, Chandon.

Tokio Frowns on Report of Hitler Mediation Move

'Unable to Accept Any Mediation Whatever,' Official Avers

APPROACH IS MADE

Japanese and German Officials in Conference on Plan

Tokio—(4)—A Japanese foreign office source declared today that Japan was "unable to accept any mediation whatsoever" in her conflict with China.

He made the statement when asked to comment on reports from Berlin that Chancellor Adolf Hitler had been asked to act as mediator in the hostilities. Despite his assertion, it was learned that Japanese and German diplomats recently had conferred with each other.

"Japan does not recede from her original contention that peace is possible only through direct negotiation between Japan and China, and then only if China changes her attitude," the source said.

He added that there has been "considerable discussion" in government circles regarding a formal Japanese declaration of war against China.

Berlin—(4)—Germany fully expected today to steal a march on the Brussels conference, which she declined to attend, and settle the Chinese-Japanese war herself.

Preliminary informal requests from both China and Japan for Chancellor Hitler to act as an umpire in their four-month-old conflict were regarded by Germany as so bona fide that Hitler, according to a source close to the chancellery, ordered Diplomat Joachim von Ribbentrop to return post haste from Rome to undertake preliminary negotiations.

German sources conceded that considerable time might yet elapse before an official announcement of Hitler's pivotal role could be made. They also admitted that the fortunes of war might so turn that plans for mediation would have to be postponed.

Friendly to Japan

But they were fully convinced that if any country could settle the Far Eastern difficulties as an impartial outsider it was Germany. While making no secret of her friendship for Japan, the reich at the same time has been careful to maintain good relations with China.

Moreover China is indebted to Germany because of the German military experts who have aided her and because Germany has renounced all claims to extraterritoriality for her nationals in China.

Germany thus was regarded as having no ax to grind.

Before accepting the role of mediator, however, sources close to the chancellery said Hitler wanted to make absolutely sure that his judgment would be accepted unquestioningly.

Hope for Colonies

Several German publicists expressed a high hope that the German colonial question would assume an entirely new aspect, favorable to Germany.

Gives Self Up, Says He Shot Wife 6 Times

Racine—(4)—Police Lieutenant Sam Nelson said today Edwin Tiggres, 30, a farm hand, gave himself up to officers admitting he had shot his wife six times with a 32 automatic pistol.

The police official said two shots struck the woman in the stomach. Mrs. Tiggres was rushed to St. Mary's hospital where she was given a blood transfusion, but hospital attaches said there was little hope for her recovery.

Tiggres went to the apartment where his wife was living, Nelson said, and fired the shots without saying a word. He came to the police station 15 minutes later. The couple had been married eight years, but separated several months ago.

Senators Open New Study of Issues in Court Bill Program

Washington—(4)—Members of a senate subcommittee began gathering today—nine months from the day President Roosevelt offered his court reorganization bill—to start a fresh study of the issues raised by that proposal.

Whether the judiciary issue is revived in congress may depend on their findings. President Roosevelt has given no indication of his own intentions.

The committee was ordered by the senate to study the whole judicial system and all the proposals made last spring for revising it. The members would have the right to recommend passage of the original Roosevelt bill or any substitute.

Because of the makeup of the committee, however, there is no likelihood that it will recommend anything very close to the president's proposal to revise the supreme court. Members have said there is small chance for agreement on any recommendation to deal with the judiciary except by a constitutional amendment.

Closes Investigation In Airplane Tragedy

Salt Lake City—(4)—A department of commerce board ended today its investigation of a United Airlines plane crash which killed 19 persons in the Uinta mountains Oct. 17. Its findings will be announced by Secretary Roper in Washington.

Salient points brought out at the investigation appeared to be: snow static might have prevented the ill-fated plane's radio from working adequately, gale velocity winds drove the ship off its course, and forecasts of unusual weather were not available to the pilot during the fatal flight.

Equity Union Asks U. S. Referendum On Going to War

Urges Wisconsin Congressmen to Support Ludlow Resolution

Madison — (P) — The Wisconsin Farmers' Equity union adopted a resolution yesterday urging state delegates in congress to work for adoption of the Ludlow resolution which would permit declaration of war only by national referendum, except in cases of foreign invasion. The resolution introduced by Congressman Louis Ludlow of Indiana, is before the judiciary committee of congress.

Jacob H. Taylor of Washington, D. C., director of the Rural Life Council, a department of the National Council for Prevention of War, said 185 congressmen have signed a petition asking discharge of the Ludlow resolution from committee. He said 218 signatures are required.

"Enemies of farm cooperatives," Taylor said, "are bankers and capitalists allied with the munitions industry. They know that there is only one way to stop the development of the cooperative movement—that way is to let America get into war—and America is not very far from it."

Favors New System

The Equity Union had adopted its resolution before Taylor spoke at a banquet last night.

Charles D. Egley of St. Paul, general manager of the Farmers' Union Livestock Commission company, said about 500 delegates and visitors to the solution of the farmers' problem is to replace the profit system with a cost of production economy. He recommended the cooperative as the machinery for accomplishing the task.

"It is highly important to you farmers," Egley said, "that we have an economic system that makes it possible for consumers to pay for your products. After all consumption is the end of the economic system. So we have to have an economic system that makes it possible for consumers to buy all things produced by farms and factories."

"We must get rid of the economic system based on profit and replace it with a system of production for use and service," he said.

Egley said the New Deal administration in Washington had made a sincere effort to patch up the economic system, but he said the only improvement made in the last four years "has come from money borrowed from our children, which just postpones the day of judgment."

Harry Jack, Hortonville, president of the Milk Pool Products Cooperative, deplored importation of dairy products from foreign countries and competition with the Wisconsin dairy industry in southern States.

Other speakers at the banquet were Dean Chris L. Christensen of the University of Wisconsin College of Agriculture; T. E. Howard, Washington, senior administration officer of the AAA; H. W. Ricker, St. Paul, editor of the Farmers' Union Herald; Arlie Mucks, state director of the farm securities administration, and Colonel J. W. Jackson, secretary of the Madison and Wisconsin Foundation.

The convention adopted a resolution recommending that the legislature change the statutes so that farm foreclosure sales could be held on the premises instead of at the courthouse.

County Boards are Asked to Oppose Shift in Costs

Association Secretary Against Increasing Burden on Counties

Madison — (P) — Wisconsin county boards were warned today by A. J. Thelen, secretary of their state association, to be on the alert against what Thelen described as a trend in state government which is increasing the costs of local government.

With the annual county board meetings starting Nov. 9, Thelen, in an official notice to the boards, said there have been two recent instances denoting a change of policy on the part of the state.

He referred to the "fire department" system of relief approved by the special session of the legislature and the request of Wisconsin General hospital to have the state emergency board increase the daily rate for county patients at the hospital.

Governor LaFollette vetoed the relief bill a provision allowing all counties at least 5 per cent of their relief costs, so that the whole fund of $3,000,000 could be disbursed solely on a basis of need.

"Dangerous Policy," Thelen said this established a dangerous policy in two directions: "First it definitely takes the state out from financial responsibility for direct relief and throws the full burden on general property to begin with. This means that the state will only participate when general property taxes break down completely and then with only enough to keep such taxpayers' head above water."

"It means that every local unit of government will have to levy to full extent within its power on general property before it can receive any state aid for direct relief. This is a sound and good system for the state but it leaves the general property taxpayer and the local units of government, who are dependent on such taxpayers, bearing the full brunt on this important function of government."

May Set Precedent "Second, this change in trend in distribution of state aid for relief will have to be carefully watched, for if it is possible to shift this burden here it is to be expected that future legislatures will be considering following out this idea on other state aids, such as pensions, hospitalization, tubercular and penal aids, tubercular aids and probably even road aids."

Thelen asked the boards to express their sentiment on whether the present rate of $4.20 a day for county patients at Wisconsin General hospital should be increased. The hospital contended it is operating at a deficit and is required by law to restore wages amounting to $30,000 to $40,000.

Thelen said the legislature provided the emergency board with a $1,000,000 free fund for departments that need extra help.

Weather Often Is Harder on South Than on Wisconsin

Washington — (P) — There are times when a cold winter can—and does—cause more deaths in some southern states than in such northern states as Wisconsin.

The year 1935 was one, in that year North and South Carolina, Virginia and Texas, homes of cotton and tobacco, had as many, if not more deaths from that cause than the Badger state.

Wisconsin recorded 10 deaths from cold in 1935, the census bureau reported, in contrast to 20 for Texas; 27 for Virginia; 12 for North Carolina and 10 for South Carolina.

Conversely, 16 persons died from the heat in Wisconsin in 1935 compared with 19 in Louisiana and 29 in Arkansas.

Jack Says State Dairy Industry Faces Two Threats

Cites Rising Foreign Imports, Growing Southern Competition

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — (P) — The largest and most important element of Wisconsin's huge agricultural industry is currently threatened by increasing imports of dairy produce from foreign countries and the steady rise of competing dairy industry in the southern states.

Harry Jack, Hortonville, president of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk pool, warned delegates at the Wisconsin Equity union convention here Thursday afternoon.

Inferentially attacking the farm policy of the Roosevelt administration, Jack observed sarcastically that while in former years farmers were urged "to make two blades of grass grow where one grew before," they are now encouraged to reduce production while imports from competing European nations steadily rise.

Jack's remarks followed a speech by a representative of Secretary of State Cordell Hull's department in which it was claimed that the Roosevelt administration's reciprocal trade treaties cannot be blamed for increasing agricultural imports.

Southern Competition
The Outagamie county farm leader also warned that Wisconsin dairymen faces a serious threat in the rapidly developing dairy industry in southern United States, "who are fast becoming our close competitors for dairy leadership. We find that Arkansas last year increased its production of dairy products approximately 25 per cent, and Texas 32 per cent."

"We cannot stand idly by and allow foreign nations, whose sanitary standards are so much lower than ours, to sell their dairy products to the American public. We cannot allow southern states to take away our position of leadership in the dairy industry," he declared.

Jack maintained that farmers can solve their present problems only through cooperative enterprises, and a close knit organization. "The farmer, because of his independent position, is today the lowest paid man in society," he told the 500 delegates who cheered his speech.

Farm Organization
The pool president quoted Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture, as saying that farmers "cannot expect economic justice until they organize themselves."

"Our economic and social life has become top-heavy," he went on. "It is now necessary to make adjustments. Many classes have organized for their own protection. Labor is today organized as never before in the history of the nation," he pointed out.

Although the American and Wisconsin farmer today sits on the lowest rung of the national economic ladder, "he has no one to blame for that position except himself," Jack informed the delegates.

Cooperatives, he said, will go far toward increasing the farmer's share of the national income, but they must be economically managed. Many cooperatives in Wisconsin today, he declared, are defeating the whole idea of cooperation by competing with one another. That must end, he concluded.

Schneider Planning to Return to Washington

Congressman George Schneider is making tentative plans to return to Washington next week. He will leave the earlier part of the week if a meeting of the committee on labor is called. The congressman is visiting with officials of Marinette and Oconto today.

Cars Must be Equipped With Two White Lights

Chief of Police George T. Prim today called the attention of motorists to the state law which requires that they have their cars equipped with at least two lights, which show white light, to enable them to see another car, person or substantial object at 200 feet. Some autoists are equipping their cars with amber lights. Two white lights must be on even though an amber light is used, he warned. Several reports have been made that some motorists have put amber lenses over their lights, and this is prohibited by law, the chief explained. Arrests will be made of motorists not using two white lights, he said.

Schroeder Will Address Sons of Legion Tonight

Herman Schroeder, Appleton, will relate his experiences as drum major with the Fond du Lac drum and bugle corps at a meeting of the Sons of the American Legion at 7 o'clock tonight in the Appleton State bank building.

During the time that Schroeder was major, the Fond du Lac unit won five state championships and participated in national competition.

Fond du Lac to Start Harbor Improvements

The dredging of Lighthouse harbor and the completion of a breakwater at Lakeside park in Fond du Lac are the aims of WPA projects which have been authorized by that city's common council.

City Engineer R. W. Heath has been instructed to prepare the projects so that work can start during winter months when many other outdoor jobs are at a standstill. The sum of $18,000 has already been allotted by the federal government for the breakwater.

The Fond du Lac park board set up $7,500 in its 1938 budget for harbor dredging. The work will be done by WPA labor, according to council plans, and a large portion of the cost met by the federal government.

Republican Drift Strong in East, Elections Show

Gains More Noticeable in Latest Returns, Lawrence States

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — Have New York and New Jersey turned from the Democratic to the Republican column? Analysis of the latest returns of Tuesday's election shows that the voters supported the Republican ticket in far greater numbers than was at first realized.

Thus, for instance, while Senator Moore, personally popular with Republican voters, managed to squeeze through with a margin of 46,000 as compared with his 231,000 in 1934, the fact is the Republicans achieved a substantial victory in completely reversing the situation in the state legislature.

The Democrats and Republicans had been tied with a 10 to 10 vote in the state senate, but now the election has given the Republicans 13 to the Democrats' 8.

Likewise, in the assembly, where the Democrats had 39 and the Republicans only 20, the new lineup is 41 Republicans to only 19 Democrats.

Over in New York state, the Republican gains appear to be even more considerable than when the first night's reports were available. The Republicans in a state-wide test captured from 92 to 95 of the delegates to the coming constitutional convention, including eight of the fifteen delegates at large.

In the legislature contest, the results are just as significant, for, instead of 76 Republicans and 74 Democrats, as the figures have been, the new legislature is to be composed of 85 Republicans and 61 Democrats and 4 American labor representatives.

Even in the mayoralty contests in both New Jersey and New York, the candidates using the Republican label won more victories than the Democrats. Thus, out of 39 contests in New York state, 27 Republican mayors were elected to 12 Democrats, while, in New Jersey, out of 19 contests, 13 Republicans were elected to 6 Democrats.

Margins Cut
In nearby Pennsylvania, the Republican drift was particularly noticeable in the defeat administered to four constitutional amendments sponsored by Governor Earle, Democrat. In the city of Philadelphia, which was won by 200,000 by the Democrats a year ago, the margin of the local candidates elected by the Democrats fluctuated this time between 1,700 and 18,700 and it is stated that more than 80 per cent of the registered voters went to the polls.

The actual majority by which the Republicans beat the Democrats in New York state will not be available for some time with respect to the legislature contests, but the total of 1,330,074 for the Republicans as against 1,338,606 for the Democrats on the vote for delegates to the constitutional convention would seem to indicate that the Republicans will have a substantial margin, especially since the unreported districts are in Republican territory.

National significance can be attached to the fact that the Republicans will control both houses of the legislatures of New Jersey and New York because it will tend to bring out into the open the conflict between state and national policies. The tendency of local legislators on the Democratic side has been to accept blindly the laws written for their respective states by the bureaucrats in Washington and to surrender their state rights. The appearance of Republican majorities may cause the clash between federal and state prerogatives to become more pronounced in the coming two years, perhaps even furnishing the outlines of the 1940 campaign issues.

Incidentally, adoption by New York state of a constitutional amendment, giving the governor a 4-year term hereafter instead of a 2-year tenure and providing also in effect that the election shall be held in a year that does not coincide with a presidential election, may change the whole aspect of party politics in a presidential year in the empire state. It was Al Smith's desire for a strong supporter in 1928 in the governorship race that caused him to draft Franklin Roosevelt as his running mate, and likewise in 1936 it was President Roosevelt's ally in New York state's electoral vote that prompted him to persuade Governor Lehman to run for reelection after he had publicly announced that he would not be a candidate again.

Just how much effect the gubernatorial races have on the presidential tickets is hard to determine, especially as Mr. Roosevelt won the governorship in 1932 when Al Smith lost the state for president and also since President Roosevelt carried New York in 1936 by many thousands of votes more than did Governor Lehman. But, nevertheless, the coincidence of state and national elections does manage to tie the state and national party cliques together in a common cause and works to the disadvantage of the voters who wish to decide state issues on state premises and national issues on national grounds. The voters of New York have wisely followed the lead of other states in separating national and state elections.

Some CIO Chiefs Seem to Have 2 Sets of Principles

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Some of our ambitious mahatmas of the CIO appear to have two sets of principles, one for the record and another for practical, everyday, domination of the rank and file by fear. Thus the CIO, in an official statement of its purposes, upholds the right of every man to work for a living, adding that to deny a man that right is to strip him of the last vestige of decency.

But unofficially some of the CIO's leaders repudiate this article of the creed and scoff away the right to work on the ground that because Tom Girdler once indicated the same belief it can't be good. By the same process Mr. Girdler might contaminate the whole CIO program, although, in that case his inderment probably would be rejected on a charge of dishonesty, which is a 2-edged word.

But having unofficially repudiated the official position on the right to work denial of which strips a man of the last vestige of decency, by what process do such labor politicians go about the enforcement of this verboten? The customary way is to surround the plant with a picket line with the potentialities of a mob and to disavow violent intentions while railing at the police or soldiers, as the case may be, for preventing or suppressing terrorism. The right to work is then maintained only by the local or state government, whose obligation to protect the citizen from slugging or assassination is not qualified by any proviso that he must join a union or a strike. Nevertheless, the strike leaders will accuse the government, local or state, of betraying its trust in refusing to connive at the violation of a legal and human right already acknowledged by the CIO itself.

Some Old Hands Merely Want to Keep Places

The workmen, in conspicuous cases, have been neither indifferent opportunists, raked up just anywhere to fill the jobs temporarily, nor mercenary terrorists of the special deputy type, but old hands who merely wanted to continue at their places. In some instances they have been in the majority, but nevertheless they were to be stripped of the last vestige of decency, to use a window dressing phrase of the CIO, on the order of a minority group and at the instigation of strangers come to town to lead them to the more abundant life, though it were necessary to bat their brains out and terrorize their families in the process. Minorities who remained at their jobs have been in even worse position, though their right to work is recognized with equal clarity and hypocrisy for the record.

This somewhat Hitleresque reasoning rejects the possibility that an individual or even a majority may honestly resent the formation by terroristic methods of a huge political bloc under the domination of a few leaders whose politics are opposed to their own.

Aspire To Control National Government

It aspires to control the national government and impose on reluctant members an administration which would be in some respect as far left as Moscow regardless of their own beliefs. It undertakes to flog Republicans into a political group which the Communists, with crafty patience, have accepted as the best available means to their ends and to make them pay tribute out of their wages toward the financing of a movement which they may conscientiously regard as a menace. It prates of democracy while expert political organizers, schooled in the technique of confusing an inexperienced rank and file, use the forms of democracy to defeat the purpose. It would make the CIO not only the sole bargaining agent of all labor in the United States, but the sole licensing power, with authority to blackball from employment any man who refused to add his mite to the political strength of the bosses and pay income tax to its treasury.

Hitler and Mussolini also compel labor to organize, but with the proviso, identical with the mental reservation of the CIO's prospectus, that anyone who doesn't join may be stripped of the last vestige of decency. He may also lose his citizenship and be declared a traitor. The CIO hasn't got around to the matter of revoking citizenship yet, but, given the power and the same disposition that it reveals today, it would, already, to the extent of its authority, it traitorizes all dissenting workmen, so a CIO government to be consistent, would have to make it official.

The facts about the CIO are never denied much less refuted, the invariable answer being that Tom is a dirty bum. All this talk about Tom's status has nothing to do with the case.

Democracy as It Is Meant to Work

A year ago the Republicans in the city of New York were overwhelmed by Mr. Roosevelt running as the candidate of the Democratic party and of the American Labor party. On Tuesday the Democratic party was overwhelmed by Mr. LaGuardia running as the candidate of the Republican party and of the American Labor party. The high comedy was that Mr. Roosevelt as a Red because he had the support of the American Labor party. In this election the Republicans have been in alliance with this very same Labor party, and the regular Democrats have been attacking Mr. LaGuardia with the red epithets that were used against them last year.

It is evident that the voters of New York City are not much concerned about what Europeans call ideology, that at least in local affairs, where they are able to know what their government is doing, they are delightfully indifferent to the excited generalizations of the doctrinaires. For this we may be profoundly thankful, recognizing that in a very clear test of their attitude the electorate of New York City have shown themselves to be singularly unperturbed to the prevailing European fashion in political alignments.

Mayor LaGuardia has been re-elected triumphantly by a coalition of regular Republicans, of CIO and of A. F. of L. trades unionists, of Socialists, and of independent Democrats. He has been re-elected because a great majority know that he has given the city an honest, capable, non-partisan and far-sighted administration, and because even the opposition knew that his record was unassailable.

Throws Little Light on New Deal Strength
It would be rash to make any predictions about national politics on the basis of the vote in New York City. Though Mr. Mahoney had the formal support of the Democratic state and national organizations, it is evident that Governor Lehman and Senator Wagner and even Mr. Farley were only going through the motions of party regularity. Mr. Mahoney proclaimed himself a New Dealer and perhaps he is one. But the organization behind him, composed of district leaders, is, to say the least, unfriendly to the Roosevelt Administration. It cannot be said, therefore, that the Mayor's victory throws any light whatever on the popular strength of the New Deal.

On the other hand, no one can suppose that the alliance between regular Republicans and the Labor party could possibly be perpetuated in national politics. It is clear, therefore, that this election was exactly what Mayor LaGuardia asked that it should be, an election turning on the issue of good government in the city with all other issues laid aside for the time being.

Reassuring Test of Democratic Institutions
That the voters and the politicians, the Republican organization and the Labor party leaders, did really lay aside all the other issues, is greatly to their credit as citizens and most reassuring as a test of democratic institutions. It has been shown that a great majority will come together in support of good government in New York despite the congested population, the complexity of its problems, the sharp contrasts between rich and poverty, the incomplete assimilation of the more recent immigrants.

The democratic system has worked here as believers in democracy would wish it to work. Competent and courageous men have come to the fore. They have governed well. Their record has been correctly and fairly displayed to the voters by the newspapers and through other channels of information. And the voters have responded by demonstrating that they know and appreciate a good thing when they have it.

LaGuardia Makes Good Government Popular
The principal credit belongs to Mayor LaGuardia. He is perhaps the first of all the reforming Mayors of New York City who has known how to make good government popular. His predecessors, admirable men though they were, never did contrive to make efficiency seem humane and to make good government seem human. Mr. LaGuardia has succeeded in doing just that. No one else has ever done it in New York City, though Al Smith in his great days did it in New York State.

For that reason it looks very much as if Tammany and the political tradition which it symbolizes had at last received a mortal blow. For while Tammany has been dying by inches in New York for ten years, there was never until now a complete alternative to Tammany. The Republicans could not offer it.

Wisconsin Utilities First In Country to Submit Survey Of Facilities to Officials

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—A mine of information on all phases of the electric utility industry in the state was completed this week by the Wisconsin Utilities association and submitted to the state public service commission with the claim by the association that Wisconsin utilities are the first in the nation who have made an accurate and comprehensive compilation of power facilities to public regulation authorities.

Included in the list of authors of the gigantic document are W. E. Schubert of Appleton, general manager of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, and A. G. Carson of Green Bay, vice president of the Wisconsin Public Service corporation.

The report, among many other things, contained a prediction for a rosy future for the electric utility industry in Wisconsin, forecasting a doubling in the demand for electric service in the state in the next decade.

Ordered by Commission
The state commission directed the utilities to make the survey to determine whether further interconnections for interchange of electric power could feasibly be established to provide low cost electric power to consumers. Information on the possibility of extending the state-wide power pool on the basis of the present electric grid system was also sought by the commission.

In a summary of the giant report, G. V. Rork of Eau Claire, chairman of the committee which made the survey, said that private utilities "anticipating the demand are carrying out a coordinated plan to provide adequate and reliable service for their customers in the future."

The transfer of energy to supply Wisconsin needs involves the use of 123 active interconnections, the report said. Possibility for additional interconnections exist at 12 points. The report gave detailed information on the possible new connections.

6,000 Miles of Lines
Approximately 6,000 miles of transmission lines are linked in the state's grid system, the report showed, with 900,000,000 kilowatt hours of electric energy transferred between public utilities in 1935, representing 35 per cent of the total power required by the utilities.

Wisconsin leads neighboring states in generating plant capacity available per thousand of population, the report continued, with Wisconsin having 312 kilowatts per 1,000, Illinois, 285, Iowa, 242, and Minnesota, 197.

Steam stations have 72.5 per cent of the total generating capacity in the state, the report revealed. Water power stations account for 26 per cent, and internal combustion engines, 1.5 per cent.

The report also contained detailed statistics on power consumption. For example in 1935 the electric energy used in Outagamie county represented more than 4 per cent of the total Wisconsin consumption. Industrial consumption was given at 45,537,000 kilowatt hours that year in the county, all others 18,993,000, for a total of 64,530,000.

Brown county's consumption was also among the highest in the 71 counties of the state, although lower than Outagamie county. Industrial use was 33,278,000 kilowatt hours, other sales 16,227,000, for a total 49,505,000 kilowatt hours, and more than 3 per cent of the state total.

Study of Foreign Languages Termed 'A Waste of Time'

Chicago Professor Says Practical Value Is Limited to Few

Milwaukee — (AP) — Foreign language study in colleges and high schools is largely a waste of time, Professor Howard Kenyon of the University of Chicago said today in a talk at the annual convention of the Wisconsin Education association.

He told the modern language section that the typical school program, centered in social studies, allows little space for the study of modern foreign languages, as languages.

"At most," he said, "they can be admitted only as devices for approaching foreign cultures, and such studies at elementary levels, can be quite as effectively carried on in original English works or in English translations."

The study of French, German or Spanish for the acquisition of linguistic skill can be justified only if there is reason to believe a large portion of the students will have occasion to use them, he said.

"We cannot believe that any large number of our boys and girls will need to speak and write, or even read, foreign languages as part of their normal experience," the professor said.

He conceded, however, that for a limited group of professional men and women the foreign language lessons were of practical value. He said it was the instructors' responsibility to encourage only the students with intellectual promise to enroll in their courses.

Dr. Samuel B. Kahn, Milwaukee, speaking before the Education of Crippled Children group, expressed pleasure at the changing attitude of the public to children and adults who are handicapped due to physical disabilities.

History repeatedly discloses, he said, that cripples have been social outcasts since civilization began. Their afflictions often were linked with superstition.

"This fact has slowly given way to new values associated with education so that today, instead of fear and contempt, the world is learning to admire and sympathize with these underprivileged children," Dr. Kahn said.

He urged parents and teachers to develop a sincere understanding of the trials of the handicapped, give them an opportunity for economic development, and give them a chance for subsequent independence.

Madison — (AP) — The public service commission granted the town of Preble, Brown county, authority Thursday to construct a water utility and render service in part of the town in competition with the Northland Bottling company.

The commission said the company does not give fire protection and does not appear to have funds with which to extend service to new homes in the area.

Town officials gave assurance, the commission said, that they would give fire protection and residential service to all requesting it at reasonable rates.

A WISCONSIN CRIME

Five Chicago hoodlums came up the other day to Milwaukee to crack a safe or two.

Averaging nearly 50 years of age they were pock-marked with crime and indifferent to everything but villainy.

Their chief admitted he had considerable difficulty in recruiting his gang because the Chicago underworld where the dregs of viciousness shuffle up alleys and into back doors had picked up rumors about "Wisconsin justice" that made their yellow livers shrink.

Engaged in the performance of their crime they were surprised by police. One gangster is dead, the others are in jail, but one officer is dead, too, shot through the abdomen because he was indifferent to everything but duty.

This officer, Raabe by name, was 36 years of age and the father of six children.

We may come a little closer to reality if we step within that officer's home and listen to his wife with her six youngsters around her as she speaks of the slain officer:

"Three things he loved, His family. His work. His church. He took such pleasure in his home. We never had much money. The children came so fast, so many of them, and we wanted them all. We didn't need to go out to parties. There was enough for us right at home.

"And his work, that just seemed to fill the rest of his life. He put in lots more hours than he needed because he was anxious to get ahead. I used to worry when he was away at night but he'd always say 'Don't worry, honey, the bureau will call you if anything happens.'

And the bureau called because our system of justice is such that jail birds, hardened with crime, are still paroled and killers with their guns full-notched walk our streets.

Really, aren't the people who permit these things, the politicians who would sell their soul for votes, and the jurymen who collapse in the face of sickly alibis, all parties to this killing?

The hoodlums never, among the whole five of them, did a decent thing worthy of note. They have spent their lives watching farmers so they could rob them after they have sold their produce, eyeing workers that they might pick their pockets after their checks were cashed, and sizing up business houses that they might crack safes after the collectors came in.

And the American people stand for that!

It seems that we have a tender heart that is touched at the killing of fine courageous men like Raabe and we mourn about the six little youngsters, most of whom do not understand what murder means, but we haven't the moral stamina in the nation as a whole to punish adequately the hounds of darkness who are responsible.

The remaining members of this gang should receive under the law life imprisonment at Waupun. Whether each shot or not is of no consequence. They were part of a shooting gang.

And after they are huddled into Waupun all the people of Wisconsin will contribute every month to buy them food and clothing and send them doctors and dentists and nurses.

And while this is going on it will be wise to turn over in the mind constantly that the leader of this gang, after shooting the Milwaukee safe, returned to Chicago for assistance and had great difficulty in mustering his helpers together because they had heard of Wisconsin justice.

And never did men pay compliments to Wisconsin in more pronounced fashion.

For Wisconsin justice is the sum total of a substantial number of items. It means honest cops telling the truth, honest jurors faithfully living up to their oaths, non-political judges who cannot be interviewed via the back door, and a political system that will not tolerate inroads by gangsters through bribery, which is practically their only manner of approach.

RIVAL SHOWS AT BRUSSELS AND BERLIN

Mr. Roosevelt has just presented in historic Brussels a musical affair that is not yet completely classified. The President promised us a grand opera but his rendition looks more like a musical comedy. It was entitled "The Quarantine of the Warriors" and was a massive, strutting affair weighted down with much meaningless language because built upon the lines of a recent Chicago address, but the uniforms looked more like those in the "Chocolate Soldier."

Making Norman Davis a field marshal was a good enough idea. But there was a great lapse of harmony even with all this preparation.

Somewhat the President induced a Russian basso called Litvinov and a Chinese canary called Wellington Koo to warble something about treaties and their sacredness whereas such articles now are for sale at 10 cents a hundred. In the midst of their aria loud cat calls in a mezzo-soprano voice with an Italian accent could be heard above the clatter of the claqueurs.

Not a single voice from Japan joined in the chorus. The Japs were busy fighting.

The spectators quit at the end of the first act declaring the motif a flop.

But just as the Brussels opera sinks under the waves a loud peal of Wagnerian music floats over the air from Berlin as Hitler, doves supplanting the imperial eagle, undertakes the creation of peace in Asia without so much as a nod to Washington.

Mr. Roosevelt's effort was probably caused by his conclusion that the labor problems in America was settled to perfection and the budget had become balanced when the treasurer used Social Security levies belonging to the workers, so what was there for him to do except to reach out and grasp some problem worthy of his superlative skill and wisdom. Only by wrestling with tremendous forces can our noble President keep in fit shape for another good supreme court appointment.

Where do we go from here?

MR. KNUDSEN KNOWS THE CIO

While the people are figuring out why there should be any CIO or what reasons prevent an agreement and fusion of the two labor efforts, and are using a microscope to discover if there is any possible sense for the rebel movement excepting the desire of certain men to ride at the front of parades even if they have to create their own parades, they are likely to be interested in the language of Mr. Knudsen.

And Mr. Knudsen is not only the president of General Motors but he is one of the most patient and tolerant men in American industry. Moreover he is that receding thing upon our horizon, an immigrant, having come to America as a young man from Denmark and at such an age that he still retains the Scandinavian brogue that was evident enough on our streets but a generation ago that no one turned his head when he heard the expression, "Ay bane come from Minnesota."

Speaking to the proposition of vertical unions Mr. Knudsen said:

"A strike binds everybody in the shop to take up the dispute of somebody they are not at all interested in, with the result that union officials have to dig up hastily enough grievances for everybody in order to hold the strike together. On the other hand, it is dangerous to the union because the worker is generally hard-headed enough to size up the dispute from his own standpoint and objects to losing time if he gains nothing by it.

"Also the union officials have difficulty preventing some young hothead from shutting down a plant employing thousands because a few of his fellows have an argument. We have instances in which the grievances of a dozen men have caused 5,000 men to lose three or four days' pay, and most of the peace negotiations consisted of the union's effort to prevent the perpetrator from being discharged. The economic weapon which in this case is placed in the hands of an individual wholly incapable of even figuring the extent of its magnitude makes, to my mind, the strongest argument for discipline and responsibility of unions, even if it has to be done by law."

We doubt if any man in all the controversies between capital and labor has ever been more patient, fair-minded or tolerant than Mr. Knudsen. This was made quite evident during all the months of negotiation between the enterprise he headed and the unions. When an industrialist will not break out all over with a rash after the union has breached its contract something over a hundred times without rhyme or reason his opinion when given publicly is likely to be free from bias and bear the sterling mark of good faith.

THE FORD KANSAS CITY CASE

The visit here and conferences of H. F. McElroy, city manager of Kansas City, with officials of the Ford Motor company, bring up the public side in the communities affected when industrial plants of going companies are moved or discontinued.

Industries choose locations in the first place for their own business reasons. Obviously they must exercise their good discretion on remaining in these locations. Changed conditions, changes of ownership, contractions, expansions—many things cause decisions to change and many changes occur which do not occasion general or more than passing local discussion.

An approximately accurate statement of the Kansas City case is that, inadequate police protection having been given its officials during a strike at its assembly plant there, the Ford company decided it could not operate the plant efficiently and hence decided to discontinue the plant. Up to 3,000 workers, living in or near Kansas City, are affected.

It is logical and fair to look on such a case as though it involved thousands of workers employed in this vicinity. Stern warning is given of what may follow when the CIO goes to extremes of coercion and violence. Lawlessness and lack of law enforcements are to be dealt with; at the same time, nevertheless, the public (always the "innocent bystander" in labor fights) is entitled to every reasonable and practicable consideration.

We hope an arrangement satisfactory alike to the Ford and Kansas City can be reached.

THE FEMININE ANGLE

Even if husband doesn't recognize wife's made-over dress, it's a pretty safe guess that her friends will.

A man's temper and the weather are much alike. You can't depend on either.

When a girl advises her boy friends to economize, it's a sign that he ought to declare himself pretty soon or else shy off altogether.

A man intoxicated with love needs only to get married in order to sober up.

When a man marries he gets a life sentence, but some get out of it again for bad behavior.

It is usually our best friends who tell us the things about ourselves we don't like to hear.

The police department foxed the parkers the other day by marking the left front tire instead of the right front. But somehow, those things have a habit of getting around and the law will have to start chalking some place else.

Tires the same color as the chalk might solve the problem for some of the parkers, but the law can always change the color of the marking.

In Milwaukee, some business men have a small boy go out with a wet sponge and remove the marks.

The heck of the parking regulations is that they give the wives another reason for having the car during the day.

A Verse for Today

THE HAPPY WIFE

She does not speak of happiness... I never can recall her saying: "Now I am happy!" so I guess it is not just a role she's playing! She has an ear for misery And is a crutch for more than one Who sits alone with memory. And hides from the all-healing sun

She lives her happiness! Her eyes Are glowing with a radiant fire. We warm our hearts, and realize Here is content! And we aspire To joy as beautiful as this! She is so wholesome and so right. Those who come near her cannot miss Sharing her brave and happy light! (Copyright, 1937)

INHERITANCE OF DISEASE

Among the many popular stories of inheritance of acquired characters, deficiencies or diseases is the one of the cat that lost her tail by accident and subsequently had some kittens without tails. This yarn may have some foundation, but the only explanation for the birth of tailless kittens would be coincidence. Certain races of cats are naturally short-tailed, and you can't always be sure of even a good cat's antecedents. Docking of the tail has been practiced for many generations in sheep raising, but no racial shortening of the tail has been observed. One investigator amputated the tails of mice for nine successive generations, yet not a mouse ever inherited the mutilation.

Texas fever in cattle is caused by a parasite introduced into the blood by a tick which is the carrier of the disease. The parasite is present in the egg-cell of the tick, so that the young tick which develops from the egg-cell is bound to contain the tick. If the parasite were a grain of sand the young tick would harbor it at birth. There is no question of inheritance here.

"Hereditary" syphilis, visiting the iniquity of the father upon the children into the third and fourth generations, is no longer recognized in pathology. We know now that syphilis may be transmitted from father to mother, from mother to child before birth, that the child so infected may be born with syphilis—this is called congenital syphilis, present at birth—but if the child is not syphilitic at birth there will be no manifestation of the disease later. Whatever iniquity of the father is visited upon the children into the third and fourth generations, it is not syphilis. Believing it would do more harm than good to describe the signs or symptoms of syphilis in the newborn infant or the child a few weeks old, we will merely say that no man or woman who has been infected with syphilis need despair of having healthy, normal children if he or she conscientiously takes treatment over a sufficient period of time and remains under treatment until the disease is clinically cured, arrested, and the Wassermann blood test confirms this opinion.

Another disease formerly deemed hereditary by physicians, still so regarded by many laymen, is tuberculosis, consumption, as it was once called. We know now that tuberculosis is never inherited! Indeed it is rarely congenital. If the mother is tuberculous when the child is born the child is almost certain to contract the disease unless immediately removed from contact, from exposure to the infection. Of course if either parent is physically below par, in impaired health, of deficient vigor, the child is not likely to be so vigorous. But in any case tuberculosis is never inherited; it is contracted by infection thru prolonged intimate association with a person who has the disease in an active stage.

Your Birthday

"SCORPIO"

If November 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m., from 1:45 to 3:45 p. m. and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:45 to 9:45 a. m., from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m. and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

Most of your expectations are likely to be realized. Procrastination is apt to make some people slow in making decisions on this date. Patience is a virtue you will have to practice. There may prevail a feeling of skepticism regarding excuses to be sure that you have a thoroughly logical one, before offering any. Complicated problems might be the reason for some of your friends acting peculiarly and it will perhaps be advisable not to judge anyone harshly on this occasion. Some strange coincidence is liable to make you very happy and convince you that you are really a very lucky person. You will probably attract some very gratifying evidence of love this date from some relative or close friend. If you are keeping house it might be advisable to be prepared to entertain visitors for it would seem you might be destined to be the center of some form of social activity on this date. Married and engaged couples and those who have become conscious that love can reign supreme in one's thoughts, must be ready to welcome any suggestions that might be conducive for merrymaking.

If a woman and November 6 is your birthday, relaxation, all kinds of healthy diversion, and an interest in social activities will help keep you well and happy. You are energetic by nature, so you must have something to occupy your thoughts and time if you are to have a contented mind. Your one fault may be that a thrifty spirit might make you disinclined to spend money for pleasure. "Our path in life will have far more roses than thorns and may lead you to a position of wealth and social influence. The stage, radio, lecture platform, authorship or tea room management, might provide the means through which prosperity will come to you. Every indication that bears on your matrimonial

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York, a novelist in New York has what appears to be one of the most extravagant apartments on record. However it cost only a fractional sum, for most of its luxury is really stage settings. His cousin is a theatrical producer and from him he obtains the seemingly lavish fixtures of costly plays which fail to survive the reviews.

What appears to be a teakwood wall inlaid with silver is really beaverboard cleverly painted. A pipe organ is of the same material. Costly Italian book cases, and a mantle of Grecian origin are there, too, but they are only smart duplicates. Even the old masters on the wall are cleverly wrought phonics. He wouldn't swap them for the originals. "I am a fictionist," he explains. "I do better work in an atmosphere of make believe."

Some people live in New York for years without seeing many of its treasures. The idea, of course, is: "Why rush; I will see it some day." However, that some day is a long time in coming. For instance, I have never been to the Statue of Liberty. I have seen it from shore and from passing ships thousands of times but, I have never been out to it and climbed its back-breaking stairway.

A fine example of how remote one may be in this town is the experience of Jim Crowley, the football coach, and Grantland Rice, the sports columnist. They are next door neighbors, but last year they saw each other only twice—in Berlin and in Los Angeles.

Music lovers rubbed their eyes when they read in their newspapers of the debut of a young baritone—Joe Smith by name—in New York the other night. He seems headed for the Metropolitan stage, but his name would have stunned New York a generation or so ago.

When his teacher suggested he pursue his career under the name of Giuseppe Fabbro, his Italian equivalent, Smith declined. "It is outrageous to think that American names and American teachers can not produce good singers."

So he billed himself under the honest but wholly unromantic name of—Joe Smith.

"If Americans must study abroad," he asks, "why is it that most of the best teachers come to America?"

And another thing: "It would be a good thing for American prestige in the opera world if Americans would sing under their own names."

Note: Many famous "Italian" opera stars are really Americans, such as Giuseppe Benettoni, who is really Joe Benton of Oklahoma;

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—From Germany comes word now that all who happen to be of German blood wherever they may be must preach and practice Nazi ideology and accept Nazi folk biology and race policy and all that it may imply.

Moreover, says Colonel General Hermann Goering, "foreign nations and foreign statesmen must recognize that in the future fruitful relationships between German and other world peoples can take place only on the basis of the organized activity of foreign Germans as natural agents of German culture and commerce."

It so happens that there are a very great number of people of German blood in the United States. Herr Goering did not mention American Germans but his phraseology appeared to include all persons of German stock.

Germany abroad, said Goering, can be divided roughly into two classes, the conscious Germans and the unconscious Germans. The conscious Germans are those deeply aware of their German origin. These, he said, "must feel with the National Socialist ideology and eventually accept it wholeheartedly."

Many Included

In that group perhaps he would include the parading Nazi organizations in New Jersey and elsewhere. Among those who are not fully conscious of their obligations, he might possibly include the large number of Pennsylvania Germans.

Altogether it seems likely the United States must harbor a goodly number of the 30,000,000 people of German blood who Goering said live outside of Germany. One out of every three Germans, he said, lives abroad.

Now a few weeks ago when Foreign Minister Von Neurath loosed a similar sweeping claim upon matter where they lived, Secretary of State Hull answered. He explained that when Germans came to this country and took out citizenship papers, they were no longer German citizens but were Americans. As such they could not be committing their services to Hitler. Von Neurath replied that of course Secretary Hull was exactly right.

For two days after the recent Goering outburst, we waited for the state department to give a reply similar to the one given Neurath; and when none came, it seemed wise to learn why.

Unofficial Spokesman

An experienced gentleman in the state department who had spent many years of his diplomatic life in and around Germany said this:

In the first place, Goering, unlike Von Neurath, is not the official spokesman for the Reich on foreign matters. He is Hitler's Secretary of the Luftwaffe, his most exclusive but not his largest advisor. So there was no reason for Secretary Hull to pay any attention to him.

Besides, said the experienced gentleman, Goering's words, and perhaps those of Von Neurath as well, were intended mainly for Germans in those countries right next door to the Reich. Each was a sort of fireside speech for the benefit of Germans in Poland, Alsace-Lorraine, Austria, Czechoslovakia, the city of Danzig, and nearby points.

So, said our experienced diplomat, when the United States bustles in with objections to these siren words, German officials are honestly surprised. Somewhat as if mamma had called the children to come to supper and found the children from the orphanage trooping in.

AIRPLANE SALVAGE

Buffalo, N. Y.—(C)—Wrecked airplanes are bread and butter for Don Coe.

Coe, a former flyer, now heads a company whose business is salvage of airplanes which have cracked up.

"In two years we have moved 12 'cracked-up planes,'" he says. "A crack-up is worth from $50 to $350, depending on size and condition of the plane."

Coe thinks his company started the airplane salvage business. In 18 months it has bought $12,000 worth of damaged planes, and parts.

TEXAS JURIES EASY

Austin, Texas.—(C)—Bert Ford, state liquor control administrator, says he is convinced there is small possibility of obtaining a liquor law conviction anywhere in Texas.

He was advised recently that a Galveston jury had found a person guilty on an "open saloon" charge and fined him $100.

"So far as we know," the official said, "no other jury in Galveston had convicted a liquor law violator in state court before, during, or since prohibition."

Kaukauna City Debt Crowding Legal Limit

Kaukauna—The city of Kaukauna, when it borrowed $29,000 at the Oct. 19 meeting of the council, brought its indebtedness to the point where the state law prohibits it from borrowing much more. The law provides that no city shall borrow more than 5 per cent of the assessed valuation of all its taxable property. Kaukauna's assessed valuation now is $8,730,870, and its total debt is $434,000, just $544.50 short of the maximum allowed. Many who attended the Oct. 19 council meeting wondered why $29,000 was borrowed, whereas before loans of thirty or forty thousand had been borrowed. Even a loan of $30,000 was impossible under the law.

Long, narrow NOSTRILS (youthful activity) and the section of CHEEK between nose and cheek-bone particularly prominent are indicative of youthfulness.

LOWER LIP straight at edges, but abruptly curving in the center reveals the cheerfulness of light-hearted youth.

Quality Is Important Factor in Schoolwork

BY ANGELO PATRI
Miss Maria held a scrap of paper in her hand and looked steadily at John Henry until he began to wiggle. "Stop off a minute at dismissal, John Henry, I want to see you."
"Yes'm."
When the line filed out Miss Maria took up the scrap of paper and said, "This is your homework, John Henry, is it?"
"Yes'm."
"This untidy, torn, dirty scrap of paper is your home work, John Henry? You did this bit of work to hand to me as your arithmetic lesson?"
"Yes'm."
"Are you proud of it, John Henry?"
"No'm."
"Then you did a bit of work that you are not proud of. In fact, you are ashamed to look at it."
"Yes'm."

Miss Maria sighed. Her eyes gazed through the glasses at John Henry with a kindly light, but they were stern.
"When you do a bit of work that shames you, John Henry, you take inches off your height. You take degrees off your honor. You kill your pride. You cheapen yourself and make yourself mean so that you dislike yourself. All this you have shown me in this scrap of soiled paper."
"The arithmetic lesson I give you to do isn't important. But the way you do it, the feeling it gives you as you do it, is highly important to you. You cannot afford to do work in such a fashion that it shames you. Your father's son. A boy looked up to by his friends. And liked by his teachers. No, John Henry, you can't afford to do that."

There was only the sound of the clock on the wall in that room as the old teacher looked down at the boy, shrunken in his clothes, and all but slipping under the desk. Finally he managed to say, "Could I do it over, Miss Maria?"
"Could you? Would you? I'd feel so much better about you—"
John Henry took the scrap of paper and hurried home. Next day he handed in two papers, masterpieces of neatness and good workmanship.
"Good! Very good, John Henry. It is quality you want in your work because it is quality you need in your soul. Don't forget that. What good you put into your work you build into your character. I'm not caring much about your percents. They're all right. But I'm caring mightily about the quality your work is putting into your soul. Thanks for helping me straighten this out."

John Henry nodded and went his way. If he thought Miss Maria a queer old nut he didn't say so to anybody. I am inclined to believe he quite understood. Children have a spiritual insight beyond their elders' comprehension at times.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamp, addressed envelope for reply.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

THE YOUNGER GENERATION
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it always incorrect for a boy to give a girl jewelry for a gift? Wouldn't it be all right for a boy to give a girl a bracelet or a pin if he knows that what she wants most of all, and if they have grown up together and have always been the best of friends?

Answer: In this present day trinkets may be given by a boy to a girl on her birthday or for Christmas, if they are trinkets and not jewelry. Jewelry of real value is not given by a man to a girl unless they are engaged to be married.
Dear Mrs. Post: Can a well brought up young woman, under twenty, offer to meet a man in town

The rush to gold costume jewelry this year would make the trek of '39 seem like a slow march. Here a chased gold brooch and bracelet, centered with black enamel, are worn with a green crepe frock colored in black velvet. The gloves are black velvet, too.

Uncle Ray's Corner

In Shakespeare's Town

V—THE POETS BURIAL PLACE
The pretty Avon river flows through the town in which Shakespeare was born. This fact explains the name—Stratford-on-Avon.

Part of door in Trinity church, showing famous knocker.
The Avon goes past a church which dates back more than 700 years. It is visited by as many people as the house known as "the birthplace." In the church under the floor, rest the remains of the great poet.

During his youth, Shakespeare observed that many old graves were opened to make space for new burials. This probably explains the verse carved on stone above the grave. In the verse, people are begged not to move Shakespeare's bones.

On one of the doors of the church is a famous "knocker." It has nothing to do with Shakespeare, but is interesting because of the legend about it. We are told that long ago men ran to the church when they were hunted by officers of the law, or before being seized, they had found "sanctuary." For 37 days they were free from arrest.

Another legend has to do with the

Player Bids and Makes 7 Spades in Hand Today

Mr. Culbertson is conducting through this column, a national examination of bridge players. Rate yourself by subtracting from 100 the points for each wrong answer.

BY ELY CULBERTSON
Yesterday's Question
Question 33: You are East, defending against a three no trump contract. The bidding has proceeded:

North 1 diamond 1 spade 2 no trump
Pass 3 no trump
Pass
West, your partner, leads the seven of spades. Dummy and your hand are:

AK6
AK7543
J95

EAST
AK10985
AQJ4
AQK108
AK9

Dummy plays the three to the first trick. What line of defense do you elect, and what is your reason, or your hope?

Answer: You should win with the spade ace and shift to the club queen. You know from West's opening lead that declarer started with at least the K-J-8 of spades. Thus, he must make two spade tricks. The best you can hope is that West has a diamond stopper.

Eyes That Have Come Hither Look

BY ELSIE PIERCE
The eyes are and have always been the highlights of the face. The predominant note, the outstanding highlight of the new Paris couture is, of all things, sex appeal. Just where do the twain meet? For remember that we have always maintained: beauty lives with fashion as well as kindness.

They meet, to be sure, in an eye treatment and eye make-up that make the orbs clear, bright, luminous and lovely and give them "that come hither look" we hear so much about.

Allure has a special significance this season. It is a subtle, ultra feminine seductiveness as utterly irresistible as it is naturally, becomingly feminine. The French call it "la femme fatale." And it is left to the eyes to express it—more eloquently than the intriguing veils, the romantic, swaggering hats, the revival of beauty patches, the molded silhouette.

An Eye Treat
Quick to realize that added attention will have to be paid the eyes if they are to express this "come hither look," many of the country's leading Beauty Salons feature a special beauty routine for the "window of the soul." It is literally an eye treat.

First, the eyes are washed with a special medicated eye solution which relieves strain and fatigue, cleanses the eyeball and makes the eyes brighter and more luminous. The faint scent of camphor in it tells you how soothing it is. Then an application of a balsam, astringent cream is gently patting into the fine lines around the eyes, again soothing the area around the eyes and smoothing away the lines. The whole treatment is reasonably priced and it's worth the investment to have the eyes twinkle, twinkle like twin stars, of an important evening.

New Arch
Next, a new eyebrow arch is suggested called "Raven's Wings." It starts out rather heavily and full, tapering off gracefully to a point.

The final filip is the eye make up with green and blue the dominating shades in shadows and mascara this season. You'll walk out with eyes positively sparkling, and not without a jar of shadow and a bottle of the eyebath for homework.

The bidding:
East South West North
Pass 2 spades Pass 2 hearts
Pass 4 clubs Pass 4 spades
Pass no trump Pass 6 diamonds
Pass 7 spades Double Pass
Pass Pass

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I was South. Admittedly, my last bid was on the optimistic side. West's final double told me that he probably held the club and heart kings and I (I hoped) the Q-J-10 of diamonds. Hence, the following play:

"West led the spade four. I won with the nine and led the heart ace; next, a low spade to dummy's queen, then a low heart to trump. I cashed the six spot. I cashed the spade ace. West discarded the diamond deuce, and dummy the club three. I led a diamond to the king and ruffed the nine of hearts. The queen-jack of hearts now were good for two club discards, but I still had to make a place for my club queen. I led the spade king and West let go the club nine, dummy the club four. Now, my last diamond to dummy's ace and the queen-jack of hearts squeezed West to a pulp. On the last heart he had either to blank the club king or discard the high diamond. I felt pretty good about this hand and the way I had put West on the spot.

"Your very truly,
"E. R. T. Rochester, N. Y."
I don't blame you for feeling good. You played perfectly. I must point out, however, that the squeeze would have failed without West's amazing cooperation on his opening lead. He had a perfect diamond lead and, if he had made it, the squeeze would have gone right up the flue. Dummy would

Business Experience Is Advisable Before Wedlock

BY DOROTHY DIX
A correspondent asks: Is it a good thing for a girl to have several years' experience in business before she marries? The answer to this question is to almost every other problem in life, is yes and no, because a business training both fits and unfits a woman for domesticity. In fact, there are seven convincing arguments in its favor and three irrefutable ones against it.

First, it is a good thing for a girl to have earned her own living because she has proved herself to herself. She knows that she can support herself, so she is saved from the deadly fear of "what would become of me if John should die?" that haunts so many wives. It gives her independence in a marriage, because she can earn her own bread and butter and does not have to stand a brute of a husband because he is a meal ticket.

Second, it teaches her to do a good job. Taking her by and large, the girl who has had a business training makes a better housekeeper than the domestic girl because she has had accuracy and precision drilled into her and so she has formed the habit of doing good work instead of sloppy work. She will cook by rule instead of trusting the results to luck.

Third, she will know how to handle money and get a hundred cents out of a dollar. No girl who has ever earned her own money and known by experience how much blood and sweat and weariness have been short a vital entry toward the establishment of hearts.

Study Social Security Act To Find Shortcomings and To Propose Needed Changes

(Editors note: This is the first of a series of articles explaining the current operation of the social security act and proposals to revise it.)

BY MILO THOMPSON

Washington — (7) — Twenty-four persons began today an analysis of the two-year-old social security law.

Their purpose was to recommend changes, if any seem advisable, to perfect the largest tax plan and the most sweeping insurance system yet projected by the American government.

Thirty-four million wage earners have a stake in these deliberations.

They are the men and women who hold, or are soon to hold, social security numbers. They have reason to be hopeful that, because of taxes which they are paying for the purpose, they will not be penniless in old age or starving during periods of unemployment.

The study started today was not undertaken primarily for the settlement of any controversy.

Vandenberg's Criticism

To report that one group asserts the present law is dangerous on the one hand, or bungling ineffective on the other, while an opposing group champions the law as it stands, would be to exaggerate expressed differences of opinion.

Criticism by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) of the procedure and particularly of the prodigious reserve fund involved, led to creation of the advisory council by the senate finance committee and the social security board.

Vigorously denouncing the present setup, Vandenberg said: "The wage-earners of the nation could have been spared the awful burden of pouring 50 billions of its resources into this fictitious (social security) fund."

He called the law itself a "typical example of the gross extent to which humane and lofty purposes are being often subverted by hasty, ill-considered shotgun legislation."

Altmeier Admits Flaws

The senator said that he voted for the social security act and that he believes in its objectives, but he added:

"I do not believe that we should decline cold-bloodedly to analyze its mathematics in behalf of betterment."

On the other hand, the law's own administrator, Chairman A. J. Altmeier of the social security board, does not hold out for the law exactly as it is. He said:

"We must continuously re-evaluate our concepts of social insurance—of what it is intended to do and what it can do; of how it operates and how it will affect the sum total of national welfare."

The American Federation of Labor executive council recently supported Vandenberg's criticism of the reserve fund, saying its accumulation easily could give rise to "undesirable political practices."

The advisory council studying the act includes representatives of labor as well as of industry and the public. Vandenberg estimated the group would take several months to complete any recommendations.

The Arawak Indians, who inhabited the island of Jamaica when it was discovered by Columbus in 1494, had skulls so hard that they broke or bent the blades of Spanish swords wielded against them.

ASKS ALIMONY AT 90

C. B. Clayton, above, 90 filed suit for divorce and "reasonable alimony" from his wife of eight years, Mrs. Mary Clayton, 77. He charged she deserted him when his money was gone and alleged he had only a pension of $10 a month while she had a monthly income of $250. They live in Los Angeles.

Committee Urges Business Ethics

Wickesburg, Sensenbrenner Help Manufacturers Prepare Report

A broad declaration of principles, calling upon the business of the nation to "adopt and maintain high ethical standards in all operations" and laying down a yardstick for such standards was made public today by the Committee on Industrial Practices of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"It is the obligation of every industrial enterprise to survey its business practices, to analyze points of weakness and points of strength, to demonstrate its capacity for change where necessary, and to adopt and maintain high ethical standards in all its operations," the report said.

The report, already approved by the N. A. M. board of directors, will be submitted for adoption by the Congress of American Industry at its meeting of the Waldorf-Astoria here Dec. 7, 8 and 9, under the sponsorship of the National Association of Manufacturers.

A. H. Wickesburg, Appleton, treasurer of the Appleton Woolen Mills, and F. J. Sensenbrenner, president of the Kimberly-Clark corporation, Neenah, are members of the committee.

William M. Thackeray, author of "Vanity Fair," used the name of "Mr. Tiltmarsh" on the title-pages of his early books.

Cheese Laws to Be Discussed by Farm Officials

State Department Arranging Meeting for Midwestern Groups

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—An idea originally proposed several months ago by Assemblyman Alvin A. Handrich, Waupaca county Progressive, will be considered at another conference of state agricultural officials of the middlewest soon, according to Fred Schultheiss, commissioner of the Wisconsin department of agriculture.

Handrich, during the regular session of the 1937 legislature sponsored and obtained approval of a resolution directing the state department of agriculture to arrange for a meeting of middlewestern agricultural officials for the purpose of considering the effect of state laws permitting the manufacture and sale of low and high moisture content cheese upon the dairy industry of those states and of the nation.

According to Handrich, competing middlewestern states allow the manufacture of low quality cheese which harms the outlets for Wisconsin's better quality brands.

It was learned here yesterday that Harry Kluefer, head of the food sanitation division of the state agricultural department, is drafting a set of model laws for submission to the conference when it is arranged.

According to Schultheiss, his department is trying to schedule the conference late this month or early in December.

He said that his department will be ready to propose definitions and standards for dairy products, certain laws for putting them into effect, and laws concerning the grading of dairy produce. The meeting will be the third held this year under the authority of the Handrich resolution.

Plan to Resurface City Tennis Court in Spring

Any Rule by Emergency Decree Is Dangerous for Democracy, Braunstein Says

MAKING WAR on the dictatorships is not the solution of the inevitable conflict between dictatorships and democracies, Dr. Baruch Braunstein, director of the World Affairs Forum of the Air, said Thursday night in a lecture at the First Congregational church under the auspices of the Monday Evening Forum.

Pointing out that the democracies were miserably defeated in the World war, Dr. Braunstein declared that the solution lay in living up to the highest ideals.

As a primer of democracy he outlined five rules that must be abided by if that form of government would live:

"Never permit any administration in power to rule by emergency decree. Democracy presupposes law. Don't allow that law to be laid aside even for a day.

"Never allow too many political parties to share in any election. You can have two, perhaps three, no more. There were 38 parties in Germany when the Nazis came into power.

"Never delay carrying through important social reforms. If we are able to satisfy the masses of our people, dictatorship will never touch our shores.

"Never infringe on the right of freedom of speech, of assembly and of organization, even to groups who would take that freedom away if they were in power. Pent up emotions bring revolution. Allow all groups free discussion, but don't let them organize their armies.

"Never deny complete freedom and equality to all groups, classes and races. America is a cooperative commonwealth and you are dominating its greatness if you try to make all Americans uniform and alike."

Declaring that he was delighted with President Roosevelt's Chicago address, Dr. Braunstein said that the United States must lose its "silly and stupid notion of superior isolation."

His Isolation Theory

"The world today is one great organism," he went on. "We can't keep war out of America unless we keep war out of the world. The Spanish Civil war would have been nipped in the bud if the democratic nations of the world had done their duty and supplied ammunition to the legal government. If Japan hadn't been allowed to take Manchuria, Mussolini wouldn't have gone into Ethiopia, and Hitler's troops wouldn't have gone into the Rhineland."

Calling Mussolini the new Caesar, Dr. Braunstein said that he was rewriting the old "Caesar" so that it read "The world is divided in three parts—Europe is Hitler's; Africa is Mussolini's and Asia is Japan's."

Democracies and dictatorships just don't think alike the speaker continued. In our system of government, he explained, the individual is sovereign. We have given, not surrendered, some of our inalienable rights to the government, and through our elections we check to see if our sovereign rights are being trampled on. The dictators say this system is effete and out of date, but actually it is they who represent something ancient and noble—tyranny, Dr. Braunstein said.

Art, truth and peace also have different meanings for the democracies and dictatorships, he continued, as he outlined the reasons for conflict between the two systems. To us art speaks a universal language, so that the music of Mendelssohn and the writings of Thomas Mann are not German but pure art. But in Germany, he pointed out, the works of Mendelssohn and Mann are no longer art because they are exiled. To the dictatorships art means propaganda.

"To them peace is hell and war is paradise. We don't understand each other any more," Dr. Braunstein asserted.

Reiterating his faith in democracy, he said it would triumph if it lived up to its highest ideals.

The speaker was introduced by the Rev. John Hanna, pastor of the First Congregational church.

WHEN Dr. Victor G. Heiser comes to the lecture platform at Lawrence Memorial chapel next Monday night he will be introduced to his Appleton audience by Dr. Thomas N. Barrows, president of Lawrence college. Dr. Barrows spent several years in the Philippine islands, where Dr. Heiser did outstanding work in the field of public health.

While there he helped in the building of the Philippine General hospital, the College of Medicine and Surgery, where he served other hospitals throughout the Philippines.

In this work he studied and helped to prevent such plagues as cholera, smallpox, beri beri, leprosy and tuberculosis.

Clare Tree Major Players Have Strenuous Existence

LIFE with the Clare Tree Major Children's theater, the group of professional adult New York players who will present "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" at 3:30 next Tuesday afternoon at Lawrence Memorial chapel under the auspices of the Edison School Parent Teachers' association, is a strenuous existence, full of unexpected adventure. With a change of place and plan for every day of the week, almost anything can happen.

Playing one day in a huge theater or concert hall before the boys and girls of one of the largest eastern cities, the company may move on, for the next performance, to the most unpretentious of school auditoriums in the smallest of towns. Every performance means a new kind of audience, a different stage, a complete change of living conditions.

Every day in the season the brightly-painted trucks, carrying the scenery and properties for the three companies, roll over the roads—heading north toward Boston, south for Texas or Virginia, west for Detroit, Chicago or Milwaukee, or east for the return to New York. Through blizzards and rain, through the traffic of congested cities and the dark loneliness of country roads, these trucks must make their way. Each performance must begin on time, and no excuses are offered or accepted in the Children's theater.

The cooperative plan on which the Children's theater is organized gives to one actor the responsibility of bringing the truck through.

Cichon Studying Law at Madison

Eviction Battles Storm Center Enrolled at University of Wisconsin

Madison—(P)—Max Cichon, 44, storm center of eviction battles in Walworth county where he formerly owned a farm, is studying law at the University of Wisconsin. He entered the law school last month.

Cichon was put off his farm under a court foreclosure order in 1933 after a sensational fight with deputy sheriffs. Last spring he appeared before Judge Roscoe Luce in Walworth county court as the agent of farmers facing foreclosure and Judge Luce sentenced him to a 30-day jail term for contempt because he was not an attorney. He ran against Judge Luce in the judicial election but was defeated.

Appeals Jail Sentence

Cichon has an appeal from the jail sentence pending in the state supreme court. He said he is convinced the constitution permits him to represent any persons who designates him as his agent in court but will study law anyway.

Cichon, lives here with his wife, a 15-year-old daughter and 10-year-old son. He is the oldest member of the university freshman law class. His schooling ended with the eighth grade, whereas entrance to the school, to obtain a degree, requires two years of college or the equivalent. Cichon said he got around this by passing the general knowledge examination, which permits him to study and take the state bar test at the end of three years.

Cichon said when he is admitted to practice he is going to help farmers and working people.

Well-Groomed Man Keeps Eye on His Accessories

BY JOHN J. KELLY
AP Feature Writer

If you're a genius, a millionaire or a castaway on a palm-fringed isle you don't have to worry about your appearance. You can be as shabby as you please.

But if you're not an eccentric, a magnate or a ship-wrecked sailor you should have a decent concern for your dress and its condition. You employ a maid to engage you because you looked like a collar ad, but you can be sure that some of the good impression you made came from your spick-and-span appearance. Don't be too busy to keep yourself that way.

Here are a few suggestions to help you keep that well-groomed appearance.

Don't wear a suit two days in succession. Good materials return to their unwrinkled shape when they have a "rest," making for sound economy, by cutting pressing bills. Two suits worn alternately last more than three times as long as one worn day after day.

Hang your suits on wooden clothes hangers. Those thin wire

Baurain, Jr., nephew of the bridegroom, will be ring bearer.

Mr. Nieft has asked the bride's brother, Rudolph King, to be his best man, and John Mullen, Chicago, Eugene Kraft, Menasha, and Vernon Van Dinter and Billy Van Denzen, Appleton, will be ushers.

There will be a reception from 3 to 7 o'clock at the home of the bridegroom's parents, and a wedding dance in the evening at Eagles hall, Appleton.

affairs the tailor sends your clothes home on leave a crease across the trousers and permit the shoulders of the jacket to sag.

Don't get suits that fit too tightly. The strain takes all the "bounce" out of the material, shortens its life enormously.

If you're conspicuously stout don't buy clothes which dramatize your size. Vertical stripes on dark or medium-dark materials will give a slimming effect. Single-breasted suits are better for short, stout men than the double-breasted ones.

Harmonize your accessories. Men, once they get around to giving a few moments attention to color-blending in dress, discover they're just as good at it as their wives. Don't be afraid to experiment with colors.

Pay particular attention to the "V" formed by your collar line and coat lapels. This area, though relatively small, is most conspicuous. If it's "dressed properly," chances are you'll present a picture of good grooming. A neatly tied necktie of good material, of a color to blend or contrast with your suit can do wonders.

The Handkerchief

If you have a short neck don't wear a high collar. It's possible to buy either stiff (preferred) or soft collars which conform to your peculiar neck construction.

If you wear a soft collar use a collar pin, unless it has tabs or buttons down. Pins should be plain. A pocket handkerchief gives a final, smart touch to a man's dress if it's right. Wear a white handkerchief (of good linen) with a white shirt or white collar. Wear a harmonious colored square otherwise.

TO REHEAT VEGETABLES
Add a little liquid—gravy, sauce, water or milk—to leftover vegetables and meat to be reheated. Then cover them tightly and allow them to heat at a low temperature for ten minutes. Overcooking them will leave them dry and tasteless.

To remove cream stains from garments or linens rub the stained area with cold water and soap and then rinse it thoroughly in cold water.

chief delegate, Count Luigi Airovandi-Marescotti, insisted this was not necessary.

The British delegation was understood to favor the approach to Tokyo through the Spaak letter as a means of circumventing the contentious question of drawing up a committee to mediate the Chinese-Japanese conflict.

Conference circles said two possible reasons lay behind this British attitude.

First, that by spurning further discussion of the composition of the committee on which Italy had demanded a place with United States, Britain, Belgium and possibly France and Russia—Italy might be eliminated from such a body.

Second, if the committee question came up next week Italy by then

MAYOR GOODLAND BUYS FIRST POPPY

Mayor John Goodland, Jr. got a head start on everybody else by buying a poppy before the annual sale conducted by the auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars actually started. Annual Poppy Sale In City Tomorrow

Auxiliary of Veterans of Foreign Wars to Conduct Drive

The Auxiliary of the Harvey Pierre Post No. 2778, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will conduct a poppy drive in Appleton tomorrow.

Mrs. Carl Rehfeldt and Mrs. Pat Ferguson are co-chairmen of the drive. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Max Buske, Mrs. Albert Jolin, Mrs. Barney Gambusky, Mrs. Irvin Gornow, Mrs. Art Slater and Mrs. E. Grunert. Art Slater has been appointed from the Veterans of Foreign Wars to supervise distribution of the poppies to the salesladies.

Calling attention to the drive in a proclamation issued today, Mayor John Goodland, Jr. said:

"The proceeds from the annual sale of these poppies are applied towards the support of the V. F. W. national home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., where orphans of war veterans are supported and provided with educational advantages of the average American home, and for the support of disabled veterans, and for local welfare work in the community. The purpose of this drive is highly commendable, and I ask the citizens of Appleton to heartily support the same."

Deplores 'Closed Door' Policy in Philippines

Cleveland — (AP) — William S. Culbertson, former ambassador to Chile and one-time tariff commissioner, deplored today at the twenty-fourth national foreign trade convention what he called the United States "closed door" policy in the Philippines and "preferential tariffs within the British empire."

Culbertson said he hoped "there are some Canadians who feel about British preference as I feel about the closed door in the Philippines. That they may see an inconsistency in the dominions' claiming the status of nations for all other purposes."

Chester C. Davis, former AAA administrator now a governor of the federal reserve system, told an agriculture session he agreed with Harper Sibley, former United States Chamber of Commerce president, "that the real test of the reciprocal trade agreement program" was whether a satisfactory trade agreement can be concluded with the United Kingdom."

Shawano Site of First Cub Training Session

The first of a series of training sessions for Cub leaders in the valley council of Boy Scouts will be held at Shawano Thursday night, Nov. 18, at the community building, Walter Dixon, Appleton scout executive, said today. The sessions will be held at cities in the council, where Cub packs have been organized.

With Italy out, Russia, too, might agree to relinquish any claim to representation on the mediation committee.

There was hope that Spaak's letter might be dispatched to Tokyo for consideration over the weekend.

The view of the French delegation was that the committee membership question should be left open until a reply to Spaak's letter had been received.

Unconfirmed reports circulated in Belgian circles that Japan was about to make a formal declaration of war against China after four months of bloody conflict.

The Chinese delegation issued a statement, meanwhile, saying it had no knowledge of reported Chinese-Japanese overtures to Chancellor Hitler of Germany to have him mediate the conflict.

G. O. P. Committee Meets to Pass on Convention Plan

Compromise Resolution Expected to Defer Immediate Decision

Chicago — (AP) — Members of the Republican national committee met today to determine whether they should call a mid-term convention to define the party's stand on governmental affairs.

As they went into session, an authoritative source said a compromise resolution would be introduced under which an immediate decision on the controverted question would be deferred. This source said the new proposal would be for the creation of a "policy committee" of 100 authorized to ascertain the advisability of arranging an off-year gathering. There would be no time limit, he added, on the group's deliberations.

George H. Bender, president of the National Federation of Republican clubs issued an eleventh hour statement contending an interim convention was needed to "plan a program which will serve as a rallying point for those who oppose one-man, one-party nomination of national affairs."

Alf M. Landon's opposition to a convention at least for the present and the outspoken antipathy of other party leaders had previously dimmed prospects for an affirmative decision on the plan.

78 Members Present

The proxy committee reported 78 committee members were present. Sixteen proxies were accepted. Harold W. Mason, Vermont committeeman, was named acting secretary.

Daniel E. Pomeroy of New Jersey was elected vice chairman of the national committee to succeed the late J. Henry Roraback of Connecticut. Pomeroy was nominated by Charles D. Hilles of New York, who recently resigned from the committee.

Elected new members of the national committee were: Daniel Hastings of Delaware, vice C. Douglas Buck, resigned. Frank O. Norton of Wyoming, vice E. V. Robertson, resigned. Mrs. Doris K. Reynolds of Wyoming, vice Mrs. Bryant Brooks, resigned.

Charles R. Enos of Colorado, vice Lawrence C. Phipps, resigned. Samuel F. Pryor, Jr., of Connecticut, vice Roraback.

William S. Linnell of Maine, vice Daniel F. Field, deceased. Will G. Irwin of Indiana, vice George A. Ball, resigned.

Pryor was elected to Pomeroy's place on the executive committee. He defeated Hastings in a 49 to 42 vote. Harvey Jewett, Jr., of South Dakota was also nominated but withdrew.

CIO Union Fights Medical Clause in Proposed Contract

Newark, N. J. — (AP) — Threatening to strike rather than sign a contract giving an employer the right to discharge workers suffering diabetes or venereal disease, a CIO union announced today it would seek to have its dispute with the Mode Novelty company arbitrated by the municipal labor relations board.

The United Used Products Local Industrial union, No. 132, balked at the health provision although the contract proposed by the company provided for a closed shop, recognition of the CIO union as sole bargaining agent, minimum wages and other features desired by the union.

Jacob Lipman, attorney for the Mode Novelty company, said the idea of children putting in their mouths toys made by diseased persons was "revolting" to him. The company demanded the right to discharge employees who did not present certificates showing they were free of diabetes and venereal disease.

William J. Carny, regional CIO director, said the health clause was "silly."

"If any such precedent were set," he said, "employers would be able to bar men by the thousands, using the medical clause as an excuse."

Denies Two Men Fired For Union Activity

Madison — (AP) — Grandon C. Gates, manager of the Creamery Package Co. at Appleton, filed an answer today denying that the company discharged two CIO employees for union activity.

Gates said Douglas Roethel, president of the CIO local, and Claire Roberts, a member, were dismissed for inefficiency, insubordination and neglect of duty.

The board has scheduled a hearing here Monday on complaint of the two men that the company engaged in unfair labor practices, denying that the company discharged two CIO employees for union activity.

The company also denied it was discriminating in favor of a competing A. F. of L. union. Both groups have been working for a majority at the plant and the A. F. of L. union has asked for an election.

Call Issued for Coalition Confab At State Capital

6 Republicans and 6 Democrats Sign Call for Session Nov. 20

Milwaukee — (AP) — Three Republicans and three Democrats issued a formal call today for a coalition conference at Madison Nov. 20.

Invitations were extended "to those citizens of Wisconsin of all political parties who believe that a crisis confronts the state and who are willing to attend a conference to discuss a non-partisan coalition movement in 1938."

The call was signed by James J. Kerwin (D), Milwaukee; Suel O. Arnold (R), Milwaukee; Roland J. Steinle (R), Milwaukee; Dr. F. M. Corry (D), Menasha; A. D. Strouf (D), Manitowoc, and W. J. Campbell (R), Oshkosh.

The statement said the conference will deal only with the five higher offices of the state (governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, and treasurer), "but is not to make any nominations nor consider candidates at this time."

The signers of the call pledged that they would not become candidates for any state office in the coalition movement in 1938.

Fear "Dictatorship"

"During the recent session of the legislature (the special session) Wisconsin was confronted with the specter of dictatorship for the first time in its history," the statement asserted. "To argue that the dictatorial method used was justified by the merits of the legislation forced through is to admit that the mandates of a dictator are better for Wisconsin than legislative government. This crisis confronts the state."

"If legislation deemed necessary and meritorious by the governor of the state and his cohorts is to be put upon the statute books without reading and without debate, then Wisconsin might better dispense with the legislature entirely and elect a dictator for life."

The joint Democratic-Republican call appeals to all Democrats, Republicans, and Progressives to "join in an effort to restore representative government in Wisconsin by attending this conference."

"This call is issued with the understanding that national politics will not be considered," the statement said. "Whatever course is pursued, it shall preserve party, place and label, as far as possible of both Democratic and Republican parties."

It Is Said--

That the first indication of the Yule Tide spirit appeared on College avenue yesterday when an enterprising workman put Santa Claus decorations on an ornamental light post at the corner of College avenue and Superior street. "The decoration looks kind of lonesome with no other Santas to smile at it from adjoining light posts."

That workmen cleaning Christmas decorations for College avenue have discovered that after Santa Claus, pictured on the decoration, receives his annual bath, he is all smiles where before the bath, he had an expression that no Santa should have. One workman found that when he looked at the head upside down, Santa looked like an awful grouch, and when he was turned right side up, he was all smiles. So now all heads that have not been washed are placed up side down. When the bath is completed, Santa is placed right side up so that Santa and everyone else is happy about the whole thing.

83 Persons Lost Lives in Traffic Crashes in Month

October Accidents Injured 1,049, Caused Heavy Property Damage

Traffic accidents in September brought death to 83 persons, reports of the state highway commission show. These figures brought the total slaughter for the first nine months of 1937 to 608.

September brought 1,148 accident reports to the commission. A total of 1,049 persons were injured during the last month, while in 469 accidents, property damage only was reported.

The state's record of striking down a third of its traffic toll from among the ranks of pedestrians was maintained in September, when 27 persons, or 32 per cent of the month's fatalities, were persons walking on highways or streets.

There were 19 car-and-car accidents, 14 non-collision, 10 fixed object, 5 car-and-train, 4 motorcycle, 2 bicycle, 1 stock and 1 unknown. Ten small children died in August traffic accidents, seven of them being six years old or under. Five were pedestrians.

Skids or blowouts caused only 71 accidents last month, but law violations were responsible for 659. Drunken drivers were involved in 28 accidents and drunken pedestrians in 12. Defective vehicles were to blame for 35 accidents. Road defects were reported by only 49 of the motorists sending in reports.

McIntyre Reviews Arguments for and Against Football

Sports Editor Talks at Dinner for Seniors of Three Grid Teams

Neenah — The case for and against football was reviewed by Gordon R. McIntyre, sports editor of the Appleton Post-Crescent, before 75 people at the annual banquet sponsored by the Twin City Rotary clubs for senior football squad members from Neenah, Menasha and St. Mary's high at the Valley Inn last night.

McIntyre answered the charges commonly made against the game today and said that football was doing very well despite the hue and cry against it. The charge that sports writers give exalted opinions to immature boys, McIntyre answered by saying that the sports writers don't make the run, their job is only to record what happened. "If the boy is O.K. in the first place, he won't suffer from the publicity."

"Professional football will not hurt the college game because of the show and tradition surrounding the colleges. The pro game resembles a 1-to-6 baseball game in its finesse, but the crowd still likes the chance and indecision present in the college sport."

The amount of gambling on football today was decried by McIntyre but he said he thought it would be a passing fancy. "You can't pick the winners because it's college football," he declared, and reviewed some of the recent upsets. Educators cry about the emphasis on football but McIntyre held them to blame for letting it get out of hand.

Sports Safety Valve
Sports as a safety valve for the emotions of the average citizen were advocated by the speaker. With all steam blown off by the decisions of the umpire, the citizen isn't so apt to go about cursing the government.

Referring to high school football, McIntyre offered as his chief criticism the lack of medical attention. Better care of equipment, tumbling exercises and the presence of a local physician at the game will determine the extent of injuries was suggested by McIntyre.

Advising the seniors present, McIntyre told them if they wished to go to college to play football with education secondary to contact some of the southern and southwestern conference schools. He did not blame boys for that attitude and stated that there was value and education in the contact made there.

To the football player seeking an education, McIntyre recommended any midwestern institution. "It will be a tough grind, but you can do it," he said, citing three Menasha youths who are working their way through Lawrence and are on the football team. Scholarships and jobs will be made available at any school to the player who can fill the bill. Those players who do not go on to school were advised to forget about playing football. The lack of training, proper equipment and coaching makes injuries too frequent in sandlot games McIntyre said.

The meeting was presided over by S. N. Picard, president of the Neenah Rotary club. Short speeches were given by Waldo Friedland, president of Menasha Rotary; Coach Arthur Miller and Co-captains DeYoung and Spalding of St. Mary; Co-Young and Co-captains Kolassinski and Grimm of Menasha, and Coach George Christoph, Assistants Harvey Leaman and Clarence Brendick, and Co-captains Dodge and Borenz of Neenah.

A trumpet duet, Peil's Polka, was played by Edna Holmbeck and Sylvia Redlin, accompanied by Clarence Stulp. LaRaine Johnson and Ruth Johnson played two trombone duets, accompanied by Miss Stulp. The girls are members of the Neenah high school band.

Crying Towels Get Real Workout As Coaches Relate Bear Stories

Neenah—Crying towels and bear stories were handed about profusely last night when the coaches of the three Twin Cities high schools made brief speeches at the Rotary banquet for senior members of the football squads.

Coach Marvin Miller started the proceedings by saying that Neenah had recently had played the Zephyrs at Menasha, winning 26 to 6. "Only thing Neenah forgot to take was the football," and Miller tossed a forward to Coach Christoph. The latter juggled the ball momentarily but clung onto it. Coach Calder immediately wanted Christoph to show the Menasha ends how the stunt was done while Gordon McIntyre commented on how times had changed. Here Miller was giving Neenah a football instead of asking them to return the towels, helmets and equipment that had disappeared following the game.

Coach Calder told how Christoph had beguiled him to a hunting camp on Lake Poygan that day and then had led him into a swamp into which Calder sank until only his head remained above water. There Christoph made him remain until Calder confessed all of the Bluejay plans for the Saturday game.

Turning to his squad, Calder said, "Boys, all the stuff I've told you the last two weeks is off. Tomorrow we start over for the Neenah game." Calder also recalled that the ambulance used to wait outside the field for the annual Twin City game and sometimes even came inside. The Rotary banquet, a growing thing for the last six years, has done much to alleviate the ancient rivalry. The rivalry is still as strong, but not as bloody.

Christoph denied the nefarious attempt to learn Menasha's plays and said, "I only hope and pray that Nae can't see any better Saturday than he saw to shoot today. Hell, make some bad substitutions. I could always tell when a duck was coming. Calder would go 'Bang-bang-bang' then I'd turn around and go 'Bang.'" Neither told how many ducks they got.

The Twin Cities coaches all thought that coaching was a pretty good racket and had an agreement to stick together, according to Christoph. If any ever reached big time, they had agreed to take the others along as assistants. Enthusiastic over the plan, they had devised a perfect play. Guards and tackles blocked the opposition while the center snapped the ball. The ends went down deep and cut in to give a pass. The halfbacks went down and cut out to further confuse the opposition. The fullback went through the line for a short pass and the quarterback went just to the right of the fullback, also for a pass. The play seemed perfect yet refused to click when they tried it at their respective schools. Calling on Gordon McIntyre, sports authority, the difficulty was quickly diagnosed. Christoph said, "Why, it's simple; there's no one to pass the ball."

Man Faces Charge of Larceny as Bailee

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—Klofax L. Cujak, Berlin, arrested this morning by Harry Kruppner, Winnebago county undersheriff, and charged with larceny as bailee by A. A. Hennig, cashier of the First National bank at Neenah, was arraigned in municipal court this morning.

Bonfire, Two Parades Feature Activities Preceding Grid Tilt

Neenah—A huge bonfire and two parades, one Friday night and the other Saturday morning, will be the Neenah High school students' effort in priming the Red Rocket eleven for the annual Neenah-Menasha football game at 2:15 Saturday afternoon on the Neenah gridiron.

Final plans for the bonfire and parades were made at a meeting of students in charge Thursday. Friday night's parade will start at Washington school at 7:30. Students, led by the cheerleaders, will parade along S. Commercial street and Wisconsin avenue and to the Green where the bonfire will be staged.

Groups of students have been canvassing stores and industries for combustible material for the bonfire, and by this noon the pile had assumed a large size.

The float parade will start at 10:30 Saturday morning at Washington school, and the line of march will be from Washington school to Kimberly, to the North Western depot on N. Commercial street, to the Bergstrom Paper company, then to the Valley Inn and ending at the school.

Judges will be stationed at the First National bank corner on Wisconsin avenue to judge the wind-up.

More Twin Cities People Giving to Children's Home

Campaign Report Given By S. N. Pickard, Neenah, Treasurer

Neenah—More interest than ever before is shown by Twin City people in the campaign to raise funds for the Children's Country Home, Winnebago, according to S. N. Pickard, Neenah, treasurer of the home.

"Without the money raised through this campaign, the home could not function, and thus a good many children from Neenah and Menasha and other parts of the county and state would be deprived of the help offered by the agency," Pickard said.

Unlike previous years when only large amounts of money were contributed by a few persons, this year there are many more small contributions besides the bigger sums, he stated.

The drive is coming along satisfactorily, but more funds are needed, Pickard added. Officials of the agencies and the volunteer workers are not making a house to house canvass for funds.

A few of the children at the home are orphans, dependent because relatives are not willing or able to give them a home; many come because of physical or mental illness of their parents, and other because their homes and environments were dangerous to their health, social development or morals.

Normal Children
By some condition beyond their own control these youngsters have been robbed of the chance to live securely and happily, despite the fact that they are normal and promising children with capacity to do things and take positions of leadership when they grow up.

The home studies the children when they are admitted, making plans for sound treatment of their needs. They are given resident home care approaching the ideal which their own home should have been.

Physical defects are removed and education is furnished. They are given ideals and standards of life which will forbid a repetition of their plight.

Officers and directors of the home are: R. E. Thickens, Neenah, president; Mrs. L. S. Leighton, Neenah, vice president; Mrs. A. C. Gilbert, Neenah, secretary; A. C. Pickard, Neenah; Mrs. George Ban- ta, Jr., Menasha; Mrs. D. K. Brown, Neenah; Mrs. Carlton Smith, Neenah; Mrs. H. K. Babcock, Neenah; Rufus Schriber, Oshkosh; Mrs. Charles Wakeman, Oshkosh; Mrs. G. C. Owen, Oshkosh; E. J. Dempsey, Oshkosh; A. F. Schroeder, Winnebago; Mrs. William Buchan- en, Appleton; Mrs. John Sensen- brenner, Neenah, and A. C. Hassel- low, Neenah.

SACRIFICED FOR PEACE
Broadstairs, Kent, England—(P)—Lines from Kipling's "Recessional" are to be erased from a Lusitania raft on Broadstairs pier. The phrase "lest we forget" has offended foreign visitors and recently a man was fined for defacing them with paint.

"If this (erasing the lines) will take us one tiny little step towards peace, friendship and goodwill, we should do it," the town council stated.

Murder Charge Against Each of Four Prisoners

District Attorney Issues First Degree Warrants Today

Milwaukee—(P)—District Attorney Herbert J. Steffes said he planned to issue first degree murder warrants today for each of four men seized after a gunfight in which acting Detective George H. Raabe was killed as police broke up an attempted safe robbery at the Luick Dairy company plant.

Steffes said that besides the first degree warrants, which would be granted upon presentation of police evidence, he would "attempt to issue additional warrants on every charge possible" against the men.

Detective Captain Adolph Kraemer had stated last night that police would request Steffes today to issue the warrants charging first degree murder.

The four men accused of participating in the attempted safe robbery at the dairy Tuesday night gave their names as Fred Rendon, alias Young and Burchiel; Patrick Connelly; Charles J. Coffey, alias Carney, and Michael Kohlmeier, who is in a critical condition from bullet wounds.

Fifth Member Killer
A fifth member of the gang, identified by Rendon as Edward Leonard, was killed during the gun battle. Police said he was Edward Atkins, explaining all the men had various aliases.

Kraemer said Kohlmeier had admitted in the presence of five or six witnesses he had shot Raabe. He said Kohlmeier refused to sign a statement to that effect. Kohlmeier, reported to have been living in Chicago, said he was from Detroit where he was a former policeman. The other three men are from Chicago.

Police had surprised three members of the burglar gang attempting to open the Luick safe after Rudolph Orth, a cleaner, slipped up.

Neenah Personals
Mrs. August Mau, 175 E. North Water street, Neenah, was admitted to Theda Clark hospital for treatment this morning.

Dim Lights for Safety

Neenah—Crying towels and bear stories were handed about profusely last night when the coaches of the three Twin Cities high schools made brief speeches at the Rotary banquet for senior members of the football squads.

Coach Marvin Miller started the proceedings by saying that Neenah had recently had played the Zephyrs at Menasha, winning 26 to 6. "Only thing Neenah forgot to take was the football," and Miller tossed a forward to Coach Christoph. The latter juggled the ball momentarily but clung onto it. Coach Calder immediately wanted Christoph to show the Menasha ends how the stunt was done while Gordon McIntyre commented on how times had changed. Here Miller was giving Neenah a football instead of asking them to return the towels, helmets and equipment that had disappeared following the game.

Coach Calder told how Christoph had beguiled him to a hunting camp on Lake Poygan that day and then had led him into a swamp into which Calder sank until only his head remained above water. There Christoph made him remain until Calder confessed all of the Bluejay plans for the Saturday game.

Turning to his squad, Calder said, "Boys, all the stuff I've told you the last two weeks is off. Tomorrow we start over for the Neenah game." Calder also recalled that the ambulance used to wait outside the field for the annual Twin City game and sometimes even came inside. The Rotary banquet, a growing thing for the last six years, has done much to alleviate the ancient rivalry. The rivalry is still as strong, but not as bloody.

Christoph denied the nefarious attempt to learn Menasha's plays and said, "I only hope and pray that Nae can't see any better Saturday than he saw to shoot today. Hell, make some bad substitutions. I could always tell when a duck was coming. Calder would go 'Bang-bang-bang' then I'd turn around and go 'Bang.'" Neither told how many ducks they got.

The Twin Cities coaches all thought that coaching was a pretty good racket and had an agreement to stick together, according to Christoph. If any ever reached big time, they had agreed to take the others along as assistants. Enthusiastic over the plan, they had devised a perfect play. Guards and tackles blocked the opposition while the center snapped the ball. The ends went down deep and cut in to give a pass. The halfbacks went down and cut out to further confuse the opposition. The fullback went through the line for a short pass and the quarterback went just to the right of the fullback, also for a pass. The play seemed perfect yet refused to click when they tried it at their respective schools. Calling on Gordon McIntyre, sports authority, the difficulty was quickly diagnosed. Christoph said, "Why, it's simple; there's no one to pass the ball."

SATURDAY'S GAMES

Beloit at Lawrence.
Cornell at Simpson.
Knox at Coe.
Carroll at Ripon.

LAWRENCE college football team will ring down the curtain on the 1937 season at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when it plays Beloit college in a Midwest conference game. The Vikes have won no games, lost three and tied one in Midwest play while Beloit has topped one, lost three and tied none.

The game will feature the final appearance of ten members of the squad while an eleventh is convalescing from an appendectomy and probably won't be around. He is Charles Gerlach.

Linebackers who will appear for the last time are Cliff Burton, Roger Fisher, Bill Guyer, Ralph Siebold, Bob Laird, Bob Westberg, and Arthur and Cap'n Grodz. Backs are Evan Vande Walle, Don Wolterding, Bob Hallquist, Ken Westberg, and probably Obby Novakofski. The latter has one season of competition left if he withdraws from the team at the end of the semester and returns next fall.

Viking drills during the last week have been comparatively light. Monday night the squad was excused from practice and Tuesday and Wednesday worked on signals and perfected plays. A slightly heavier drill was held last evening. Only one change was seen as a possibility for Saturday. It will have Westberg at the blocking half in which event Garvey may be returned to center to give the line much needed weight.

May Start Seniors
Although there may be other changes in the lineup to permit seniors to start, the chances are that Crawford and Burton will be seen.

The Razzers took a 769 for high single team game and the Chiselers rolled a 2,579 for high team series.

The Chiselers won two games from the Razzers. Miller's 220 game and 566 series was tops for the Razzers while F. Boughton hit a 520 series to lead the Chiselers.

Two games were won by the Squawkers over the Beefers. Dr. L. E. McBain scattered the pins for a 202 game and 541 series to pace the winners while H. Finger rolled a 203 game and 529 series to head the Beefers.

All the rivalry of past years will be revived and all the old stories repeated when Neenah and Menasha high school football teams clash tomorrow afternoon at the Red Rocket stadium before a capacity crowd. The fact that the game counts in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference means comparatively little—it's a Neenah-Menasha game and that's enough for any good Twin City football fan and student. During the week there have been almost daily pep sessions in the two schools and representatives of each have been visitors in assembly periods of the other school. Last night the Menasha and Neenah Rotary clubs entertained the senior gridgers on the two teams and the St. Mary's Catholic school gridgers at a dinner and night there will be bonfires and more pep sessions. The picture on the left above, shows Coach Nathan Calder of the Menasha team with his two co-captains. They are Alvin Kolasinski, No. 19, who plays end, and Eldon Grimm, husky tackle. The picture on the right above shows a couple lads out of the Neenah backfield. They are W. Kettering receiving the ball from Edsel Birdsall.

Former Star Suggests Chicago Seek Athletes

Chicago—(U)—John Schommer, a star Chicago football player in the days when the Maroons fared much better on the gridiron than they have in recent seasons, believes his alma mater should, by legitimate means, make a definite effort to attract better athletes.

"That can be done without a slush fund and without doing things that all of us agree would be undesirable," said Schommer yesterday at a meeting of the Chicago Alumni club, of which he is secretary-treasurer. "The present trend will result in Chicago having increased difficulty in scheduling games."

Chicago, in four straight defeats last season, has scored one touchdown, making that tally on a blocked punt against Princeton.

Pioneers Hope to Continue Undefeated This Season

By the Associated Press

Carroll college's football team, undefeated in two years of play, invades Ripon tomorrow for a game that features the Wisconsin college schedule. The University of Wisconsin eleven is idle and Marquette plays at Villanova.

The game at Ripon will be a homecoming attraction and will wind the season for the Redmen. Carroll has one more game, a contest with Wheaton college at Wheaton, Ill., next week. The pioneers have won four games and tied one this year.

Lawrence college is at home to face the Beloit squad tomorrow. St. Norbert has a Sunday game, meeting St. Viator college at Kankakee.

In the Teachers conference, two northern circuit games are scheduled tonight. Eau Claire is at La Crosse and River Falls plays at Superior. Superior is leading the northern loop with two wins.

Platteville plays at Milwaukee tomorrow in the only southern section game.

games. B. Kolitsch hit 183 and 465 for the Voigts team.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

Without even waiting to offer preliminaries:

Lawrence-Beloit — The Vikes learned last week that if they take it upon themselves to play football they can do fairly well. Expecting that they'll remember the lesson we'll pick Lawrence.

Ripon-Carroll — Ripon will be tougher after its tie with Lawrence last week but the Pioneers have a lot of stuff. Carroll.

Menasha-Neenah — Resorting to a coin on this one, I tossed it into the air and it came down I know not where. So we'll say it'll be a tie.

Sheboygan-Green Bay West — There's not the slightest reason to believe that East won't win handsily.

Manitowoc-Green Bay West — West might come back but we doubt it very much. Manitowoc.

Villanova-Marquette — Villanova's course. This isn't Marquette's year with all those sophs.

Knox-Coe — St. Norbert-St. Viator — Mickey McCormick's Green Knights have two weeks to get ready for this. Without knowing a thing about St. Viator we'll pick St. Norbert.

St. John-Edgewood Academy — A feeling that the Madison school is too big prompts us to pick Edgewood.

St. Mary's-St. Norbert — The Menasha Catholics should add a victory to their string in this mission.

Lawrence-Freshmen-Mission College — Considering the ability the Lawrence team showed last week against St. Norbert, they should hang up a victory in this game.

Notre Dame-Pitt — Waterloo and Marathon, Antietam and Belleau Wood have nothing to do with this except that maybe some blood will be shed here too. It's the last of the current Pitt-Notre Dame series and threatens to be the most sanguinary. Pitt's undefeated, Notre Dame whipped Navy and Minnesota after a bad start. The nod, a little wishy-washy, goes to Pitt.

California-Washington — These Golden Bears are (or have been) the answer to any football guesser's prayer. California.

Harvard-Army — Five years ago today Army whipped Harvard 46-0. Tulane-Alabama — Can't see anything but Alabama here.

Ohio State-Indiana — The Hoosiers look like the only lads with any prospect at all of upsetting Ohio State's Big Ten appt. but we'll string along with the Buckeyes.

Baylor-Texas — Bible's Texas Longhorns haven't beaten anybody of note this far, and don't figure to do more than give Baylor's undefeated Bears a workout. Baylor.

Fordham-Purdue — These Rams are getting so good it's a distinct social error not to be able to pronounce Woodchuck-wicz, Woiwkoski, Krywicki, et al. The Purdue are tough but we'll take Fordham.

Sprint Star Returns To Chicago for Degree

Chicago—(U)—Ray Ellinwood, the University of Chicago track sensation of 1935 who left the campus for a hermit's life in the California woods, is back on the midway again—but his return brings no joy to followers of the maroon track team.

Ellinwood, who as a sophomore established a new indoor world record of 49.1 for the 440 yard run in his first intercollegiate race, left school to study philosophy in a cabin outside Pasadena. He returned yesterday to Chicago to complete requirements for a degree, but will not be eligible for athletic competition because he sold endorsements to a tobacco company.

Ellinwood, late in 1935, set a new Big Ten and world record of 49.9 seconds in winning the conference indoor 440-yard title.

State Basketball Meet Set For March 29—April 1 at Madison

Milwaukee—(U)—The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic association voted yesterday to discontinue regional tournaments as a means of selecting teams eligible to compete in the class A division of the annual state high school basketball tournament.

The association decided instead to give five conferences the power to enter two teams each in the state finals.

Conferences include the Milwaukee, Milwaukee Suburban, Big Eight, Fox River Valley and Wisconsin Valley. Plans call for two remaining berths in a contemplated 12-team field to be filled by Superior and Eau Claire.

The W. I. A. A. announced the state tournament would be held March 29, 30, 31, and April 1 in the field house of the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

The state event will be preceded by class C meets March 2, 3, 4 and 5; class B tournaments March 9, 10, 11 and 12, and regional competition March 16, 17, 18 and 19.

Mrs. Moody Denies Pro Winter Tour of Nation

New York — (U)—Helen Willis Moody's flat denial today she has any idea of turning professional caused no surprise among those familiar with plans, already well formulated, for the former queen of world tennis to be a star figure in a forthcoming winter pro tour, starting in New York.

In San Francisco Mrs. Moody said: "I have not signed a contract. I do not intend to, and I have no plans for turning professional."

Mrs. Moody has given no public inkling of her intentions through-out negotiations with the New York promotion group, headed by Francis T. Hunter, former championship doubles partner of Big Bill Tilden. These negotiations have been in progress for several months.

The largest Twin City football crowd of the season is expected to jam the Neenah bleachers and, needless to say, the football-minded populace of both towns as well as those ordinarily mildly interested in the sport, are properly stirred over the game.

Bonfires and parade will precede the battle Friday night and Saturday morning, and townspeople, including city officials, are expected to turn out en masse for the pre-game festivities as well as for the actual conflict.

Since 1896, when the first Twin City game took place and ended in a scoreless tie, the Bluejays have dominated the heavy end of the score, winning 12 games to Neenah's 8. Last year, however, Neenah staged an upset, annexing a 12 to 7 victory, after not having won a game since 1930.

The Bluejays warrant favoritism because of their holding the championship Shawano eleven to a scoreless tie.

Both football squads went through their final workouts this afternoon and are primed for the big game of the season. Neither team commands much recommendation from this year's performance. Neenah has won two conference games, lost three, and split in its

Ex-Lightweight Champ Succumbs to Illness

Nation's No. 1 Grid Game Will Show Pitt, Irish

Indiana Hoosiers Hope to Upset Ohio State in Big Ten Tilt

BY EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO—(AP)—Notre Dame's fighting Irish tangle with Pitt's Panthers tomorrow in what looks like a knock-down drag 'em-out battle.

Fifty-six thousand spectators are expected to pack Notre Dame's stadium at South Bend for the contest, which rates as the No. 1 tilt on the day's national gridiron program and has all the earmarks of those oft-heard but seldom seen "grudge" fights.

There may be no "grudge" involved, but the Irish, decidedly on the upgrade after close wins over Navy and Minnesota, will be out to avenge the 26 to 0 whipping they took from the Panthers last season. They also will be out to wind up victoriously their series with Pitt, which will be ended, at least for the time being, with Saturday's contest.

Depends On Line
Coach Elmer Layden, who put his squad through a combined offensive and defensive drill yesterday, is relying on his forward wall for victory. The Irish line played valiantly against Minnesota, and Layden feels another such performance would stop the powerhouse Pitt attack headed by Marshall (Biggie) Goldberg.

Indiana's Hoosiers, 33 strong, worked out at Columbus, where they will try and upset Ohio State's Big Ten title drive tomorrow. The Hoosiers rate as the highest hurdle in Ohio State's championship dash and figure to severely test the Francis Schmidt team, which wound up drill by trying several new plays.

Work On Defense
Northwestern, which worked on defense, will be favored to whip Illinois, but Bob Zupke's team usually show well against the Wildcats and the 1936 champions aren't expecting an easy afternoon. Ralph Bennett, Illini sophomore, may get the starting fullback post over veteran Howie Carson.

Defensive work against Hawkeye plays occupied Iowa's Go-pheers, who travel to Iowa hopeful of picking up a third conference victory against no defeats. Iowa's final practice drill was featured by a scrimmage in which the varsity looked impressive.

Michigan's punters were given a heavy workout as the Wolverines, confident of a third conference victory, prepared for Chicago's Ma-joons, who rehearsed their pass plays. Purdue goes outside the conference to meet Fordham at New York, with Wisconsin having an open date before entertaining Purdue at Madison.

Little Chute—Eagles displaced Bears with a 3-game win for first place in Combined Locks league matches at Little Chute today. The squad piled up a high 2,728 series in its decisive victory.

Manly led the league with a 234 game, Trentledge was second with 229 and C. Ebke 216. Trentledge rolled a 614 series and Ebke scored 597. The Rams had a high team game of 945.

Giants took three straight from Redskins to gain second place. Ebke was high for the winners with Floyd Schuler rolling 576 and Josers Kostka thumped a 584 series for the Lions as they dropped two to the Rams. Manly was high for the winners.

Tackles are Star Pupils At St. Norbert College

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK—(AP)—If you've been wondering where all that Southwest conference grid talent comes from, mumble this will help: Twelve thousand school-boys play in the Texas Inter-School football league annually. . . . Those who should know say Joe Louis' next fight (against Max Schmeling in June) will be his last—win, lose or draw. . . . Texas Christian, one of the best passing football outfits in the country, has played in the mud nine times in the last two years. . . .

Chicago Cubs are reported interested in Lou Fette and Jim Turner of the Bees. . . . One baseball manager who always gets a respectful hearing from the umpires is Buckey Harris of Washington. . . . besides being backed by sound judgment, his arguments always are presented in a dignified and gentlemanly manner. . . .

Dick Cassiano, understudy to Marshall Goldberg at Pitt, got straight "A's" in his studies last year. . . . And who said tackles are dumb? . . . Take the four big fellows on the St. Norbert college squad at West DePere, Wis.; Norb-

INDIANA AGAIN TRIES 'GIANT KILLER' ROLE

Indiana's hapless Hoosier football team continues its "suicide schedule" by meeting Ohio State at Columbus Saturday. Indiana, with a victory over Illinois to its credit in the Big Ten standings, has lost to Minnesota and Nebraska by one touchdown margins. Ohio State has won three Conference games and has lost only to Southern California. Shown here are: Garry Davis, power-running fullback, Frank Filchock, passer and runner, and Capt. "Jick" Kenderdine, end for Indiana, and three of the Ohio State backfield, Mike Kabealo, triple threat halfback, Nick Wasylik, halfback, and Jim McDonald, quarterback.

at the ends most of the afternoon. Both performed in big time style last Saturday with Crawford scoring the touchdown on a pass from Novakowski. Both forced the Ripon backs to run wide and were always down the field fast on punts.

Bill Masterson is reported ready to take over the left tackle berth with Arthur showing at right. Masterson was playing the best ball of his short career last week until hurt. Captain "Tut" Grode looks like a fixture for right guard on offense and probably right tackle on defense. The other guard will be Mike Galko who also played top ball last week. Rog Fischer should get a chance to play center again on the basis of his work last week but Garvey may take over the job to give the line weight.

In the backfield it would appear that Westberg will be the blocking back. Novakowski will run, punt and pass. Vande Walle probably will call the signals, show at full back and do some of the running with Bob Hallquist at right and doing the plunging.

Beloit has been playing only fair ball this season using forward passes to get it places. However, its scoring figures reveal that while it hasn't won so many games it has counted 49 points, almost four times as many as Lawrence, and that the markers usually resulted from passes.

Virgil is Passer
Virgil, a quarterback, does most of the Gold passing while Brown, an end, is the receiving ace. . . . While Lawrence and Beloit are battling tomorrow afternoon there'll be another game in the state which will hold considerable interest. It will have Carroll at Ripon where the Pioneers will be gunning for a win and claim to honors among the state college.

Coach Elmer Lampe of the Pioneers was in Appleton last week scouting Ripon and commented that he feared the Crimson today. He said that his Pioneers will be inclined to take Ripon easy while the Redmen will be primed to erase the memory of the Lawrence tie by a win over Carroll.

Wellington said he heard the game by radio and figured it was worth $2.50 even though he didn't occupy a stadium seat.

Hinkle, "Dutch Clark" Vie for Scoring Honors

THE race for individual scoring and pass receiving honors of the National Football league is narrowing down to a close and thrilling finish as the teams move into the final month of play, according to statistics released today. One point separates the scoring leaders and three men are attempting to shatter two pass receiving 79 points made by Jack Manders. Bears in 1934. Manders is in third place at present with 34 points. Tinsley Tinsley, Chicago Cardinals end from L. S. U., continues to lead the pass receivers in his first year of professional football. He now has 28 catches for 500 yards and 24 points. He needs but seven more catches and a gain of 27 more yards to shatter two League records established last year by Don Hutson, Green Bay Packers and Alabama.

In the meantime, Hutson has jumped into a tie for second with Charlie Malone, Washington Redskins, with 21 catches. Inasmuch as Tinsley's Cardinals will be idle for the next two weeks, and Malone's Redskins won't play next Sunday, Hutson will have an opportunity to tie or pass the leader during this time. This will put him in a position to successfully defend the championship laurels he won last season.

Cliff Battles, Washington and West Virginia Wesleyan, continues to lead the ground gainers with 507 yards. George Grosvenor, Cardinals, and Hinkle, Green Bay, are second and third, respectively, with 458 and 367 yards. Jack Manders went into a tie for field leadership with Riley Smith, Washington, each having four successful placements to his credit. The longest of 25 kicked throughout the circuit this season was made Sunday by Ward Cuff, Giants, who booted a placement 42 yards.

Bob Monnett, Green Bay, holds the lead for forward passing efficiency with 52 per cent. Sammy Baugh, Washington, has an efficiency of 47 per cent but has completed thirty more passes for 298 more yards than the totals of the Green Bay and Grosvenor, Cardinals, is third with 46 per cent.

Badger Reserves Display Strength

Fred Benz Shines in Scrimmage Against Frosh Eleven
Madison—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin second varsity scored four touchdowns and as many extra points in practice yesterday to overwhelm a strong freshman eleven using Purdue plays.

The Badger gridders displayed far more fire and drive than did the first stringers the night before. Especially good was Fred Benz, Milwaukee end, who had been demoted to the second string forward wall.

Benz made several sensational pass snatches, and was a bulwark on defense. He caught one pass for a touchdown. Roy Bellin, halfback; Herb Paul, fullback; and Jim Martin, halfback; tallied the other scores. Bob Eckl, Milwaukee, sophomore tackle, converted all the extra points.

Intra-Squad Game
Coach Harry Stuhldreher announced there will be an intra-squad game after a freshman charity game Saturday. . . . Thereafter, Stuhldreher said, the squad will take things easy, with no scrimmages until after Father's day Boilermaker contest, Nov. 13. . . . Concentration on assignments, blocking and charging will be emphasized next week. All players are in fine condition and the Badgers should be at top form. . . . Roland Nelson, who has been out of uniform for three weeks, again put in his appearance, but did not take part in body contact. . . . He is watching the offensive thrusts and trying to learn all new plays issued since he was put on the shelf with an injured leg. He too will be able to play Saturday, and Stuhldreher is working him in as understudy of Howie Weiss, Ft. Atkinson fullback.

Radio 'Sent' Valued at $2.50 by Nebraska Grad
Lincoln, Neb.—(AP)—John K. Selbeck, business manager of athletics at the University of Nebraska, is amazed. He received yesterday a check for $2.50 from R. H. Wellington of Chadron, Neb., a graduate of the school, for "enjoyment of the Indiana football game."

two non-conference tilts, while Menasha has won only one conference game, tied one, lost three, and lost its only non-conference fracas. . . . Found for pound, the teams are well-matched, although Menasha is credited with having a stronger line. However, Neenah's line has been crippled during the entire season, but the Red Rockets' forward wall will be at full strength tomorrow afternoon.

Name Neenah Lineup

Pep parades and bonfires will be staged by students of both schools Friday night and Saturday morning. Pre-game ceremonies will also be held, the festivities to start at 1:55.

JAYS PLAN PARADE
Menasha—Spirit for the Neenah-Menasha high school football game will reach a high point tonight with the parade, pep rally and bonfire by Menasha enthusiasts. The parade will be led by the Menasha high school band under the direction of L. E. Kraft with over 10 floats entered by students.

The rally and bonfire will be held at the old high school site following the parade at 8 o'clock down Racine and Main streets to the Brin theatre and back. Speakers from both schools will appear on the program. Franklin Le Fevre will lead the group singing of the new football song and others.

With two days of vacation in which to prepare their floats, the student groups have arranged elaborate displays in competition for three cash awards. The theme of all groups is "Beat Neenah!" Six judges will be placed along the line of march to determine the winners.

Bonfire Tonight
The bonfire committee was active today gathering material and piling it high at the fire tonight. Members of the committee were Vernon DesJarlais, Charles Gamsky, William Barwick, Stillman Francer and Clarence Malchow. General chairman of the event was Vernon Ponzl.

The Menasha high gridders staged their last workout of the season this afternoon, indulging in a light limbering up exercise. A few kick-off and place kick attempts and a brief session of running play were included in the drill. The Bluejays are in top condition for the game.

Ten of the 11 players will be starting their last game for Menasha Saturday afternoon. Only Ray Henk, guard, of the starting eleven is not a senior.

A meeting of the Menasha high school "M" club will be held at the Elks club following the pep session.

Football Tests Under WPA Program Started
All WPA football kicking and passing tests in Outagamie county will be completed by Monday, according to Hubert J. Piette, county WPA recreational director. The various recreation leaders are spending their time at the parks completing the tests. Youth in Appleton, Kaukauna, Seymour, Hortonville, Bear Creek and other WPA recreation centers may compete.

Results are compiled on a sliding scale basis, giving younger boys the same chance of winning as older ones. Boys on high school teams are not eligible to compete. Roger Niles, Appleton, won the contest last year and was given a football trophy. At least 2,000 boys in the state are competing this year. Decisions will be announced on Nov. 10.

St. Norbert High Points for Upset

Win Over Menashans Saturday Will Bring Conference Tie

W. De Pere—St. Norbert Squires play their second game this week when they tangle with St. Mary's of Menasha in their second conference game at Legion park, De Pere, Saturday afternoon.

If the Squires knock off the Menashans, they will go into a tie for first place with St. Mary's and St. John's of Little Chute, which knocked them off Tuesday in comparatively easy fashion.

Coach Bob Muller was not at all satisfied with the defensive play of his team in Tuesday's game, and Wednesday night he drove them through the longest drill of the season. Thursday night there was another heavy session with a short signal drill scheduled for tonight.

Only injury suffered in the St. John's game was that of Jim Koeha. West De Pere quarterback who wrenched his knee. He is, however, expected to be in shape for the weekend battle. Other members of the squad were a little stiff from Tuesday's bruising battle but will have the kinks worked out by game time.

St. Mary's this year has won one game, lost two and tied one. They were beaten by Appleton high, 20 to 6, and by Kaukauna, 14 to 0. They won over St. John's 14 to 0, and tied the same team in a second game, 12 to 12.

Kansas Jayhawks In Crucial Test Against Nebraska
Kansas City—(AP)—The Kansas Jayhawks, who got in on a pass-against Oklahoma—head for Lincoln late today where tomorrow they will try to prove they are just as much entitled to a seat up front in the Big Six as any other football team, despite the fact most fans believe the Kansas next pass will be out.

Meanwhile two other conference squads which go touring this week-end were camped in enemy territory, or enemy Missouri, which meets St. Louis tomorrow, was to drill in the Mound city this afternoon, and Iowa State, headed for Oklahoma, was scheduled to work out at Emporia, Kas.

Kansas followers, still a trifle dizzy from gazing up at their team perched on the top rung of the ladder with two victories, used the old comparative score system to bolster their argument that the Jayhawks have an excellent chance against the Nebraska.

Kansas defeated Oklahoma 6 to 3, they argue, while the best the Huskers could do against the Sooners was a scoreless tie.

Green Knights Work To Perfect Offense

West DePere—After a two week's rest occasioned by two open dates the ill-starred Knights of St. Norbert college are working to build up the offense for their game with the St. Viator eleven which they will meet at Bourbonnais, Ill., Saturday.

Coach Francis (Mickey) McCormick is dividing his squad into two combinations so that each team will be able to work smoothly together. Bill Hickey, Juneau sophomore, who has yet to see any varsity action, will in all probability start at left halfback.

Saturday will mark the third meeting of the St. Norbert and St. Viator teams. St. Norbert tied the Green Wave in their first engagement in 1935 and beat them with a lucky place kick for a field goal in a homecoming tilt at DePere last year.

Hostesses Jittery Over Coming Visit of Windsors

BY SIGRID ARNE
Washington—(4)—Behind closed doors here there's some very vehement firestorm going on because 15 years ago the finger-nail-biters were ignoring two ladies they very much wish they hadn't. One's the Duchess of Windsor, and the other is her aunt, Mrs. Bychman "Aunt Bessie" Merryman. Fifteen years ago the Duchess was just part of Washington's social fringe: a pretty, brown-haired, young woman whose husband, a naval officer had left her. She was invited around some on the gold-coast but mostly because her second-cousin was the wealthy Mrs. George Barnett, wife of the one-time commandant of the marine corps.

Wiener and Marshmallow Roast at Birthday Party

Bear Creek—The tenth birthday anniversary of Henry Flanagan, Jr., celebrated Saturday with a wiener and marshmallow roast in a nearby woods. The following boys were the guests at the party: Thomas and James Flanagan, Golden Thomas Large, Norbert Norder, Donald Gorman, Jack and James Smith, Harold Mares and Robert Rebnan.

Mrs. Robert Golden entertained a number of relatives at a party at her home Sunday. Dinner was served followed by a theater party at Clintonville. Those who motored to Clintonville were: Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Golden and family and Helen, Thomas, James, Marion, Henry, Jr., and David, Jr., Flanagan.

A meeting of the Band Booster club was held at the high school Tuesday evening. After a business meeting, bridge and five hundred were played. Winners of honors at bridge were Miss Marie Brisco and Mrs. Thomas Gough at five hundred, Mrs. H. A. Rasmussen and Mrs. Bert Lehman.

New members, who joined Tuesday evening were: Mrs. George Schenk, Miss Marie Brisco and Mrs. T. E. Gough, Mrs. M. W. McCone and Mrs. Henry Zemple were guests.

The following named women will serve on the entertainment committee at the next meeting Dec. 7: Mrs. A. W. Kieselhorst, Miss Charity Mulvaney, Miss Neva Stoeck and Mrs. H. A. Rasmussen. On the committee for serving at the next high school dance, Mrs. A. W. Kieselhorst, Mrs. George Schenk, Miss Marie Brisco, Mrs. Frank Flanagan, Mrs. C. M. Norder and Mrs. Irvin Paul.

Ladies Aid Society of Potter Meets at Church

Hilbert—The Ladies Aid society of Peace Reform church at Potter held its regular meeting Thursday afternoon at the church parlors, Mrs. George Duckow was hostess.

Miss Katherine Kees, who is taking a nurse's training course at St. Agnes hospital, Fond du Lac, was called home by the illness of her mother, Mrs. Nick Kees.

The Rev. William Jones and Melvin Anderson of Chicago, were dinner guests Wednesday at the home of the latter's brother, Harry Anderson. They were enroute to Wallace, Mich., where Mr. Jones will conduct evangelistic services.

Mrs. Oscar Anderson of McAllister spent Tuesday at the home of her son, Harry. She was enroute to Chicago where she will make an extended visit at the home of her son Melvin.

Mrs. N. E. Ziskind left here Thursday morning for Sheboygan from where, in company with her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Leveton of that city, she journeyed to Brooklyn, N. Y., to attend the wedding of her cousin, Miss Claire Alpert to Benjamin Sharskasy, which will be solemnized Saturday. They will then visit relatives in New York City and New Haven, Conn.

Duchess had some hard social standing.

Embassy Plans Questioned
The really big question of the day is, "What will the British Embassy do?"

In Washington lingo that means, "Will the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, and his wife, Lady Lindsay (one of the Oyster Bay Moxys) invite the Windsors to the embassy. It is understood the embassy must wait for a "Go ahead" signal from London. But if the signal comes, the affair will be as royal as anything at Buckingham. The embassy is a huge and austere building, and Lady Lindsay can take her royalty or leave it.

If the Embassy entertains, the social flood-gates will swing wide open. Other embassies will dust off their footman and light up like birthday cakes.

Here and there a hostess with a large enough house and gilded social standing will turn up in the line of people sending out engraved invitations to meet "Their Royal Highnesses, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor."

And, of course, there will be the official entertaining by government heads and the parties by members of the Duchess's family.

May Meet Lewis
Her family is led off socially by Mrs. Barnett who gave the young Wallis Warfield, of Baltimore, her coming-out party. And it is her Virginia estate, Wakefield Manor, 40 miles south of Washington, that the Windsors are expected to visit.

The White House is expected to lead off the official entertaining—if any. Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the secretary of state, is expected to follow. While next in line would be Mrs. Sumner Welles, wife of the assistant secretary of state.

And could it be that the modest, one-time school teacher who is now wife of John L. Lewis, the labor leader, may play hostess to the pair? Her white Colonial home filled with fine antiques should certainly be adequate setting for the meeting of Windsor and Lewis. And Windsor has announced he wants to meet Lewis.

One other question that is keeping Washington hostesses chills is: Will the Duke, who says he is coming here to study housing and labor conditions, turn "thumbs down" on all parties?

Christian Mothers to Go to Holy Communion

Hollandtown—The Christian Mothers society of St. Francis church will receive communion in a body at the 8 o'clock mass Sunday.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Nic Gerits and daughter, Norraine, and Doris Lamers, Little Chute, Mr. and Mrs. Gerits and daughter, Lorraine, Wrightstown.

Seymour School Plans Open House

Classes to be Held Wednesday Evening to Observe Education Week

Seymour—As a part of the school's observance of American Education week there will be an Open House night at the Seymour school from 7:30 to 9 o'clock Wednesday evening. Both grades and high school will be in session. To compensate the children for attending school at night, the day session will be shortened somewhat on that day.

Mrs. W. H. Burgoyne resigned her position as treasurer of the Ladies Aid society of the Methodist church after having served for nearly 34 years. She was elected to the office on Jan. 1, 1904. Her resignation was accepted at a former meeting with a vote of thanks for her long and faithful service and at the last meeting on Tuesday, Mrs. Lloyd Tubbs was elected to fill the position left vacant by the resignation.

Students at the Seymour schools are enjoying a two-day vacation this week due to the teachers attending the convention at Milwaukee.

TOO MANY WASHINGTONS
Washington—(4)—To most foreigners there's only one Washington. That is Washington, D. C., the nation's capital. The fact that there are 23 post offices in the United States bearing the name of the first President confuses postal workers who receive mail from foreign countries addressed simply "Washington" or "Washington, U. S. A." The greater portion is treated by them as undeliverable and marked "insufficient address." Postal authorities have issued instructions that most of such mail can be delivered if sent here.

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: Neill, a young federal agent, finds his beloved Janet, a gun and Prescott Fanning's freshly shot body locked in a cabin on a yacht at Absalom's Harbor, Md. Neill hides her nearby in a disused liner, then joins Mark Bonniger, local investigator. Neill learns Janet didn't shoot the flashy swindler but has to find out who did to save her. He suspects queer little Eyster, who hated Fanning, and Fanning's ex-bodyguard, Ira Buckless. He distrusts Kettering, a lawyer down from Baltimore, in fish. The yacht is ransacked and Bonniger questions Buckless, who tells Neill's connection with Fanning.

Chapter 34
EYSTER CAN LIE
His fellow's story only confuses the issue. "Bonniger said slowly. "He claims not to know the girl, and certainly the girl that the crew have described would never have fallen for that brute!"

There was a silence. Kettering looked from one man to another. "Well, I'll be on my way," he said heartily. "Got to get some sleep."

He left them. When they were alone, Bonniger said, without looking directly at Neill. "I took a shine to you right at the start, Neill. Your offer to help me out seemed so friendly. I said to myself: This lad has the makings of a first-rate criminologist. He's cool and he's keen."

Neill had dreaded this moment. Bonniger was such a good fellow and a gentleman. When he spoke in this friendly way, Neill had an overpowering desire to blurt out the whole truth. But he couldn't betray Janet. "Certainly is nice of you to say so," he muttered.

"Have you anything to say to me?" Bonniger fooled with a pencil. "Why, no," Neill said, assuming a look of surprise.

"If you were interested in this girl and Fanning wronged you, you couldn't tell me that."

"Sure, I could tell you! But there's nothing in it!"

"All right! ... You came down on the bus arriving here at 7:45 on Tuesday, you said."

"That's right."

"What did you do? Eat dinner?"

"No, I had eaten in town. I registered at Wickes' and sat down on the store porch to listen to the village gossip."

"Who was there?"

"How can I tell you, Mark? It was dark and they were all strangers to me. There was one fellow I remember, who they addressed as Jake."

"Jake Loker. ... How long did you stay there?"

"Not long. Half an hour. Three quarters maybe."

"Then where did you go?"

"Eyster For An Alibi"

That question brought Neill right up against it. He thought of the crouching figure outside the window, and his offers of friendship. "Have you noticed a guy called Eyster who hangs around?"

"Sure."

"Well, I struck up a kind of friendship with him."

"He doesn't seem to be a very attractive sort of man."

"Perhaps not. But I was alone. We got to talking and afterwards he invited me up to his room for a drink. So we sat drinking and chewing the fat."

"What did you talk about?"

"Good Lord, Mark! What do you talk about when they're drinking? We just made a noise. I was with him until I went to bed."

Bonniger, still avoiding Neill's eye, called a constable and told him to see if he could find Eyster. To give Eyster time enough to get around to the front, Neill detained the constable by giving him a detailed description of the man.

While they waited, Bonniger and Neill discussed other aspects of the

Suggests Stock For Patrons to Combat 'Co-ops'

Babson Says Chain, Department Stores Should Start Movement

By ROGER BABSON
Winchester, Eng.—How can American chain and department stores secure goodwill of the public as have the English "co-ops"? This question has been running through my mind all during my stay in England. Here is one suggestion:

The chains and department stores of the United States and Canada should make an effort to sell shares of ownership (their common stock) to their patrons—and only to their patrons.

Whether or not it would be well to give customers who are stockholders a small discount on their purchases, or to limit each stockholder to one vote, I am not sure. I am certain, however, that it would greatly help the present situation at home if the chains would start a systematic movement to secure every local customer as a stockholder.

Such a movement, should not only increase sales, but should prevent unfair store taxes and other legislation. Furthermore, credit losses and overhead expenses could be reduced by limiting the credit of a customer to the amount of stock held. Merchants must find some middle-ground between doing a strictly cash business and the present tendency toward a universal credit and installment business. Debits kill more people than do germs.

Fear of "Co-Ops"
It was interesting to note that Woolworth, Ltd. has recently opened a new store here in Winchester. Their 680 English stores have the same red fronts as they do in the United States. They advertise goods at "Threepence" and "Sixpence" (six and twelve cents in our money). When Woolworth started in England, American investors were fearful that they could not compete with the great co-operative stores of Great Britain.

In fact, during recent years, along with many others, I have been afraid that the "co-ops" would become a big factor in the United States and Canada and perhaps bring about revolutionary changes in our existing merchandizing methods. That is one reason why the stocks of American chain store systems are now selling so low. Since studying the English system, however, I have changed my opinion to some extent and readers will be interested in my reactions.

How the "Co-Ops" Work
The co-operative stores started in a very humble way at Rochdale, England in 1844. Their growth has been gradual, but continuous. They now operate over 20,000 shops. They have a tremendous wholesale business and 168 factories, bakeries, and dairies. They even own foreign plantations. They have 300,000 employees. Their gross business is running much over $1,000,000,000 per year. They have nearly 3,000,000 members whose average yearly purchase of goods is $150. They have a share capital of about $700,000,000 and a loan capital of about $200,000,000. They are in fine financial condition.

These English co-operative stores should be compared with department stores in the United States and Canada. The "co-ops" are not merely grocery and meat chains. They handle all manner of goods. They are more like our Sears-Robuck type of store. Yet, while these co-operatives have been making such tremendous headway, the chains and the independent stores of England have also been flourishing. Actually, the "co-ops" may not have increased their proportion of the total merchandise sold in Great Britain during the past ten years!

Cooperatives' Creed
The co-operatives work on the following principles:
Their prices are competitive. They sell to everyone—to non-members.

You join by buying one share of stock (par $500). Then you are entitled to a discount on your total purchases at the end of the year. This discount varies from year-to-year according to the net earnings of the society to which you belong. In practice, it has averaged about 5 per cent. If you spend $1,000 during the year, you get back a "dividend" of $50.

You are offered additional "shares"—from $5 to $1,000—as time goes on. The shares can be purchased only by actual customers. Each shareholder has one vote irrespective of the amount of stock held. The stock used to pay 5 per cent dividend but now pays only 3 1/2 per cent.

You are offered debentures up to a small limited amount, but only in the society where you trade. These loans carry no vote and now pay 3 1/2 per cent.

You are supposed to buy merchandise only for cash. However, if you are a stockholder, you can run up a credit to the amount of your stock.

The cooperative movement has a very good civic influence and carries almost a religious appeal. To this extent, it is far better for communities than are our chain stores! The church should endorse the co-operative movement.

Bullish on American Chains
Despite the praise showered upon co-operative societies, readers can see that they offer little to investors or consumers which cannot be matched by existing privately-operated stores in North America. Certainly, our chain store shares give investors a better yield. The prices charged by some of our chains should average 5 per cent less than the co-operative prices, thus offsetting the discount given by the societies. As a matter of fact, after having heard so much about the English co-operatives in the last few years, I was advantages, these independent merchants of England would not be so numerous and prosperous as they are today. From a competitive price standpoint, our independent stores and chains have nothing to fear from the cooperative movement. If, however, there is to be a differential as to taxes or other considerations, that is a horse of another color. In this connection, the co-operatives have an edge in public relations. They develop a strong local sympathy and loyalty, while our chains have, in the past at least, tended to develop local animosity and distrust. That is why I believe some method of customer ownership would help our chain and department store merchants.

Tracing English History

Historians were interested in discoveries made during the excavating for this new Woolworth chain store here in Winchester. While digging the cellar for this new building, the construction workers came in turn to five separate and distinct periods in English history. The first six feet yielded English relics covering a 700-year period back to about 1200 A. D. While excavating the next few feet, utensils were found which were strictly Norman, thus showing the level of the city from 1200 back to 1060 A. D.

The next five feet unearthed implements of the Anglo-Saxon age—from 1060 back to 400 A. D. Digging deeper, flag-stones and other ruins of the Roman city which existed from 400 A. D. back to about 100 B. C. were discovered. Finally, under these great stones were found symbols of the Bronze, Iron, and Stone age which extended back to perhaps 3000 B. C.

This entire collection was presented by the Woolworth company to the Winchester museum. During these five eras, England has tried every method of selling goods from straight barter to street peddling to modern chain and department stores. Yet, the honest, efficient, and progressive independent merchants have survived all these changes. Alert independents, by adopting many of the methods of their competitors, are still prospering. Yes, today in England with all the "co-ops," the chains, the mail-order houses, and department stores, there are more independent merchants than ever. Most of them, moreover, are making a good living!
